BRITISH ROUT GERMAN BOMBERS

Nazis Modify New Naval Victory Claim

SAY SUB HIT REPULSE, BIG BATTLE CRAFT

Retract Earlier Statement of Torpedo Blast Disabling British Cruiser.

ANNOUNCES NO REASON

Same U-Boat That Sunk Royal Oak Struck Blow; 3 Other Ships Go Down.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—The German supreme command today amended an announcement that the same submarine which sunk the British battleship Royal Oak had torpedoed the British battle cruiser Repulse.

The revised communique said that the Repulse had been attacked, but it eliminated an earlier announcement that the 32,000 tons warship had been badly damaged and put out of action.

The amended communique said:

"The high command announces: The U-boat by which the British battleship Royal Oak was sunk has attacked and torpedoed the British battle cruiser Repulse."

The first announcement had said:

"The same submarine which sank the British battleship Royal Oak has torpedoed the British battleship Repulse by a direct hit, badly damaged her and rendered her unfit for action."

In issuing the amended communique the high command did not immediately announce the reason for the change.

Repulse, 32,000 tons normal displacement and 36,800-37,400 at full load, is one of Britain's three battle cruisers, a sister ship of Renown.

Its complement totals between 1,181 and 1,205 officers and men. Repulse's over all length is 794 feet 2½ inches.

It carries six 15-inch guns, 12 4-inch guns, eight 4-inch anti-aircraft guns, four three-pounders, one 12-pounder field gun, five machine guns and 10 Lewis guns besides multi-machine guns, and has eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The ship carries four airplanes.

In 1932-1936 it underwent reconstruction at a total cost of about $25,000,000. Repulse had modified bulges as part of its special protection against submarines. It carried nine inch armor amidships.

Elevator Assured For Courthouse As Board Backs Plan

The Richland County Bar association's campaign for an elevator in the courthouse may be almost won.

County commissioners indicated today that they favor the construction of an elevator and the opening of office rooms on the top floor of the building and in the space now occupied by stairways.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, said the construction program would be started "just as soon as we can spare the money from the general fund."

Cost of the elevator alone was estimated at $8,000 and Mitchell said remodeling of the third floor of the building would require "quite a little more."

Funds for the work were expected to be available this year from increased collection of delinquent taxes and possibly a diversion of funds from the engineer's department which, under a new law, may be financed almost entirely from state gasoline and auto license money.

Mitchell pointed out that the top floor of the courthouse, which is used only for storing records, would provide considerable more space if it is made accessible by an elevator. At least two more offices could be opened on the first and second floors when the stairway is removed, he said.

EX-NEWSMAN, 85, DIES

CIRCLEVILLE, O.—(INS)—John W. Johnson, 85, retired publisher and newspaper columnist, was dead today. He had long been active in affairs of the Ohio Newspaper association and Buckeye Press association.

Crash Cost Lives Of 2 Youths

Shown above is the wreckage in which Howard Artz and William Roth, both 19, were fatally injured when the machine crashed into the side of an east bound freight train at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad grade crossing, five miles northwest of Mansfield on route 39 at 12:30 a. m. today. Jack Hemerley, 18, the third member of the party is in a serious condition in the Shelby Memorial hospital.

COMPANION INJURED

8 Others Hurt In Four Accidents In Vicinity Over Week-end.

Two Shelby youths were fatally injured and a third seriously hurt early this morning when the automobile in which they were returning home from a roller skating party crashed into the side of an eastbound freight train at the unprotected Baltimore and Ohio grade crossing on route 39, five miles northwest of Mansfield.

The dead are:

Howard Artz, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Artz, 135 East Main street, and William Roth, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roth, 28 Fourth street. Both died from skull injuries.

Also suffering from skull injury is Jack Hemerley, 18, of 30 Second street, who is confined in Shelby Memorial hospital. Attendants described his condition at noon as "fair."

Artz was instantly killed. He had a broken neck and fractured skull. He was pinned underneath the machine when it rolled into a roadside ditch.

Roth expired in General hospital shortly before noon today. Physicians said he had a fractured skull and jaw and a fracture of the wrist.

Hemerley was taken to the Shelby Memorial hospital. Attendants, who described his condition as "just fair," said he sustained a head injury.

The accident was one of five which occurred in the Mansfield district over the week-end, injuring eight other persons. One is still in the hospital. Elsewhere

Ready To Defend Tiny Finland

Drive Off Nazi Planes Headed For Navy Yard

Warplanes, Flying Toward Scotland's Coast, Flee Artillery Fire, Combat Planes of British, London Says; Increase In Hostilities Looms.

(By United Press)

LONDON—German airplanes struck for the great British naval bases on the coast of Scotland today but suffered casualties in a counter-attack by Royal air force war planes and anti-aircraft batteries.

Anti-aircraft guns boomed at Edinburgh as the German planes—three of which were reported over the city—aimed at the vital dockyards and bases along the Firth of Forth.

Royal air force craft fought with the raiders and, the air ministry announced, "inflicted casualties upon them." The ministry's announcement characterized the raid as an "attempted attack" but sudden activity by both allied and German craft hinted that hostilities might be increasing rapidly on the sea and in the air.

The developments included:

1. Denial by the British admiralty of German reports that the big British battle cruiser Repulse was badly damaged and put out of commission by a U-boat.

2. Reports from the Norwegian coast that fishermen had seen several warships (believed to be British) and airplanes attack on Saturday a lone warship (which they believed to be German) and seriously damage or sink the vessel.

3. Successful reconnaissance flights in adverse weather by British aircraft over central and northern Germany. (In Berlin, the high command announced that a British bomber had been shot down near Frankfort and a French reconnaissance plane had been shot down in the Rhineland.)

Some of Great Britain's most important naval bases and naval yards are on the Scottish coast.

There had been several reported German air thrusts in the past toward Scotland but none of a successful or serious nature. One of these reportedly had been at Rosyth, but the German planes were driven back from the Isle of May in the Firth of Forth.

The royal air force engaged today's raiders and "inflicted casualties upon them," the air ministry said.

The air ministry announcement said:

"The air ministry announce that German aircraft have attempted to attack coastal objectives in Scotland this afternoon.

"The royal air force have engaged the raiders and inflicted casualties upon them.

"A further bulletin will be issued as soon as possible."

(One of the earlier attacks on the Scottish coast had been reported Friday by the crew of a German warplane picked up at sea by a Danish steamer. The crew said their plane had been shot down by British craft in a dogfight over Tyneside, Scottish

County Bigelow Foes Organize Tomorrow

Emergency Committee To Marshal Its Forces At Meeting At Courthouse; E. S. Weller Named Chairman.

A campaign against the Bigelow pension plan will be organized tomorrow night when the Richland County Emergency committee marshals its forces at a meeting at the courthouse.

The committee has been set up here by the Ohio Emergency committee, a statewide organization, which charges the Bigelow proposal to be the most serious threat ever made against the state's financial structure.

Emerson S. Weller of Mansfield was named today by B. B. Brumley, chairman of the Ohio Emergency committee as head of the Richland county committee of 30 members.

At tomorrow's meeting the group will select a vice chairman and secretary and treasurer after which a representative from the state committee at Columbus will outline the campaign.

The county committee was set up Sept. 6 and has been gaining momentum by establishing county units and enlisting the aid of various state-wide organizations in its fight against the pension plan.

The pension proposal already has been openly opposed in Richland county by the Richland county Farm Bureau as well as a number of other groups.

The Bigelow plan provides that all persons who have reached their 60th birthday and who have resigned from gainful occupation would be eligible to receive $50-a-month pension from the state.

AIRPORT OPEN

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The $40,000,000 New York City airport went into service today. Air line pilots termed it the safest in the United States.

Only official sanction by the Civil Aeronautics authority was needed to make it the eastern terminus of Transcontinental Air lines, replacing, at least in part, Newark which is fighting approval.

The airport also will be the American terminus of trans-Atlantic Ail lines. Sealanes are accommodated in the bay adjoining the field at North Beach. The airport was started in 1937.

HEAD OFF COUP

Hungarian Nazis Say Police Arrest 140, Seize Guns, Ammunition.

BUDAPEST —(AP)— Hungarian Nazis today reported police had arrested 140 members of the outlawed Hungarist "Death Legion" to head off a coup against the government.

Though there was no confirmation from official sources, Nazis said the mass arrest occurred Saturday with the seizure of large quantities of guns and ammunition.

HIT OWN PLANE

Nazis Announce Craft Over Berlin Mistaken For Enemy.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—A German airplane, "lost" 20,000 feet above Berlin Saturday night, was shot down by anti-aircraft fire, it was announced today. It was mistaken for an enemy plane.

The plane flew over the restricted area of Berlin, causing the first anti-aircraft fire here since the war started. The pilot parachuted to safety without injury, it was said.

WAITS ANSWER

Hitler Message to Stalin May Affect Next Step in War.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Adolf Hitler was reported by usually reliable sources today to have sent a communication to Josef Stalin by courier and to expect an early answer due to affect Germany's next step in the European war.

While official sources remained silent on the reported communications, it was said elsewhere a courier carried the message to Moscow over the week-end.

There was no definite indication of the contents of the communication but it was believed that the answer would have an important bearing on future steps to be taken by the Nazis.

Repeal Bloc Begins To Fret About House

Senate's Foes Of Arms Embargo Admit Lower Chamber's Vote Will Be Close But Stick To Claims For Victory.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Start of the third week of the senate's neutrality debate found administration forces today confident of victory in that chamber but expressing some concern over prospects in the house.

One senator who has been working for the administration measure, which would repeal the arms embargo and set up a "title and carry" system of wartime sales, expressed confidence that it would pass the senate by the end of next week. As for the house, he said:

"It's pretty close over there as it looks now."

Senator Clark (D., Mo.), opponent of the pending bill, said that the most favorable administration poll of the house membership showed a majority of only 20 for repeal.

On the other hand, Senator Schwellebach (D., Wash.), a repeal advocate, said his advices from the house showed that "everything is all right for the administration bill."

As for the senate, administration leaders were becoming uneasy over the length of the debate. Senator Clark said that 20 senators still were seeking floor time. Asking to speak today were Senators Clark (D., Idaho); Capper (R., Kans.); Shipstead (F. L., Minn.), and Ellender (D., Ala.).

Some senators who want to retain the arms embargo indicated that if the chamber votes for repeal, they would try to restrict arms sales to defensive weapons. This suggestion has been advanced by former President Hoover and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) was among those working on such an amendment. Senator Clark (D., Mo.), on the other hand, said that he could see no practical way to distinguish between offensive and defensive weapons.

PARIS: Artillery Guns Fire On Germans Along 100-Mile Front

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—French heavy artillery was reported today to have opened fire on German forces massing behind the western front in apparent preparation for a general offensive.

Military dispatches said the French guns were dropping a heavy barrage on German communication lines and troop concentration points along a 100-mile front extending from the Moselle river to the Haardt forest.

The sector, on the French extreme left flank, had been reported earlier in the day in a general staff communique as the center of "great activity" within the German lines. Supplementary military advices said a Nazi attack appeared imminent.

French sources said that recent reinforcements had increased the German strength opposite the vital northern sector of the Maginot line to between 700,000 and 800,000 men.

The French said scouting parties, sent into no-man's land, had reported that lights gleamed behind the German front throughout the night, apparently indicating that troops, tanks and trucks were moving up to "jump off" points. The rumble of heavy wheels was clearly audible in the French front lines.

German artillery, which previously had been battering the French rear, was reported silent all day yesterday. This French military men said, was customary

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—The Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu having received new instructions from his government, will confer with high Soviet officials at the Kremlin late today, it was announced.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia's negotiations for strengthening her hand in eastern Europe struck a slower pace today, with foreign circles anticipating merely compromise agreements with Finland and Turkey and speculating on possible future Russian moves in the Balkans.

The Finish envoy, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi returned to Helsinki last night by special train. He was expected back, but possibly not until after the meeting of Scandinavian kings and the Finnish president Wednesday in Stockholm.

Unofficial reports said Finland, refusing to be drawn into the Russian orbit as have Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, would concede certain Baltic islands for Russian naval bases, but would balk at a military alliance or concessions on the strategic Aaland islands.

While a Hungarian diplomatic delegation came to Moscow for an undisclosed purpose, a Turkish mission was believed preparing to depart shortly, possibly after signing some cautious agreement respecting Russian safeguards on the passage of warships through the Dardanelles into the Black Sea.

(In Istanbul, it became known Turkey had taken precautionary military steps because of reports that Russian troops were massing in the Caucasus on the Turkish and Iranian-Persian border. The Moscow radio Sunday night denied troop reinforcements there.

(Authoritative sources in Istanbul said Turkey's foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, had refused flatly the Russian demands for recognition of the partition of Poland, formation of a Russian-German sponsored neutral bloc in the Balkans, and Russian and Bulgarian expansion at the expense of Rumania.)

We're Sorry If You Thought Our New Sunday Paper Was Due Yesterday-Watch for It Oct. 29

LITERALLY hundreds of Mansfielders are so anxious for a glimpse of the new Sunday News-Journal that they just can't wait.

Apparently missing the statement in the announcement of the new Sunday paper which said the first issue would be on Oct. 29, hundreds of persons called The News-Journal offices yesterday asking to have the paper delivered to them.

Newsstands which handle the daily News-Journal reported the same experience.

We're sorry that we couldn't manage to get out a Sunday paper—the kind we're planning—on that short notice.

But on the other hand, we're glad to see that so many people are interested in the new Sunday News-Journal, and we promise that we'll do our best to make it a snappy, cracking good newspaper, from first page to last, from its first issue—on Oct. 29—onward.

We've had another indication of a warm welcome for the Sunday News-Journal. Saturday, carrier boys in the city asked their subscribers if they'd like to subscribe to the Sunday paper.

Several carriers managed to find everyone on their respective routes at home. And they got a 100 per cent answer of "Yes"! Every person solicited wanted the Sunday paper.

Other carriers reported results almost as good, though they were not able to check with all their daily subscribers.

Tomorrow, we're going to go into details on that eight-page colored comic supplement. We've already told you that the characters would be among the most popular in the nation. Tomorrow, we're going to name names!

So watch for tomorrow's announcement on the colored comic.

And watch for the Sunday News-Journal on Oct. 29.

Mrs. J. H. Sheriff, 107 Penn avenue, has just returned from a 10-day visit with her sister, Mrs. Wilbur Brown, Culver, Ind. Mrs. Brown was Miss Hattie Kline of Mansfield before her marriage.

Vary French dressing with fruit juices. For instance, a mixture of lime, lemon and orange, or grapefruit, lemon and pineapple, mixed with French dressing, gives a delightful new flavor to any fruit salad combination.

Chocolate biscuits are something very different. Make biscuit dough the regular way, then spread each biscuit generously with grated sweet chocolate. Fold half over and bake as usual.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Madge!"

Dicky's voice over the telephone, as he uttered my name, had lost none of its tenseness.

"Yes, Dicky," I answered, and added the hasty assurance for which I knew he was waiting.

"I shall go over to the Lansfield a little after nine, I think," I told him. "But if you want to go over there before I arrive, just get the keys at the desk, go on up to the apartment and make yourself comfortable."

"I can't wait until you get there," he answered, and something in his voice told me that he was voicing a real sentiment, not paying me an idle compliment.

"I'll be there the first minute I can make it," I told him, and his fervent, "Bless you, sweetheart!" lingered in my ears after I had bidden him good-bye and hung up the telephone.

"Dicky just telephoned," I said breathlessly. "It's all arranged. He'll go over to the Lansfield. I told him I'd join him there shortly after nine o'clock. Was that right?"

"Perfectly so," she answered, smiling. "Indeed, you may be able to get away earlier. It all depends upon the way things shape up tonight."

"And how prompt they are in serving dinner," her husband chimed in, and Lillian wrinkled her nose at him.

"Rein in your Arabians!" she adjured him; "and hold them tightly. "We're going to eat as soon as our trusty steed, interpreted car, can get us to our rendezvous. Come on, Madge! Let's go!"

"Do you think it's wise—" I began and cut the sentence short.

"Thus to call attention to our get-up?" Lillian finished for me.

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean—" I stammered, abashed.

"Don't be an idiot just because you know how!" Lillian said. "It's a perfectly natural question to ask. And the answer is affirmative. If there's anything that looks phony about these disguises, you may be sure those kids will spot it. You may also be sure that they will make crisp and caustic comments thereupon — isn't my alliteration lovely? Therefore, if we run the gauntlet of the kids successfully, we'll be fairly sure to click at the restaurant. Do you get me?"

"Perfectly," I told her, smiling, but I kept my eyes on the curious children the while. But from none of them did there come any comment which could possibly be interpreted as a penetration of our disguises.

"On which side of the restaurant were they seated that day?" Harry asked as we entered the doors, and saw the head waiter coming toward us.

"To the right of this partition," I said, and Harry gave a crisp direction to the man who was bowing to us and waiting our pleasure.

"We want a table for three about half-way down the room and near the side door," he directed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

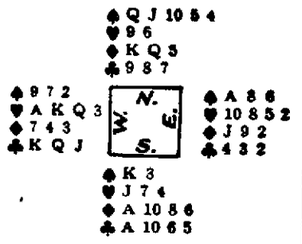
BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A MARRIAGE BREAKER

Much of the trouble caused between husbands and wives in bridge is due to a weak bid by one of them which gets the side too high, coupled with an argument as to which one was at fault.

If you will keep close tabs on it, you are likely to find that the bad bid was usually made not by the declarer, but by the partner who raised him.



(Dealer. South. East-West vulnerable.)

South started the ball rolling here with 1-Diamond and West overcalled with 1-Heart. North then made a free overcall of 1-Spade. So far, so good. East had an elegant fit for his wife's suit —or so he thought — so bid 2-Hearts. After South then bid 3-Clubs. West called 3-Hearts. This was beaten two tricks, for a bad score in the duplicate game.

At other tables North and South played it at a contract of three in one suit or another and barely made it, giving East and West a definitely better score.

In the argument after the hand. East tried to blame West, but the latter had about six playing tricks as usually figured. East had a trump fit, but only an ace on the side without even any helpful distribution, and should not have made a free raise of his partner's suit.

HOROSCOPE

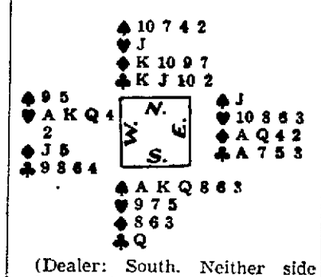
For Tuesday, October 17.

Much may be gained on this day by a determined effort to succeed and by overcoming old crystallizations and stubborn obstacles or frustrating circumstances. Steady application, hard work and sound principles are likely to attract the interest and substantial co-operation of superiors, elders or old-established institutions. But beware of intrigues or shady collusions. There may be renewed values in old holdings, or there might be gains through trusts or insurance. Be wary in reading and signing papers.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a gainful year, with much success to crown hard work, application and good judgment. The solid support of elders, superiors and long-established institutions is indicated. Old matters flourish and static conditions are stimulated. Values should increase and insurance or trusts prove lucrative. Sign all writings carefully and be alert to plots, schemes and sinister intrigues.

A child born on this day may be sturdy and steadfast despite some dubious character aspects. It may be studious, of sound judgment and principles, although susceptible to sordid intrigues and doubtful entanglements.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Broiler Aids Economy

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Do you use your broiler as often as you might? Do you find it an aid to thrift rather than a temptation to extravagance, as one bride called it? Broiling is such a quick, easy and delicious way to prepare meat that she found chops and steaks were appearing on her menus more often than her food budget warranted

If that is your experience you are overlooking the fact that you need not limit your broiled meat dishes to chops and steaks There are many economy meat cuts which can be given added flavor and a touch of style by broiling them.

Dinner Menu
Lamb Choplets with Bacon and Bananas
Creamed Potatoes
Lima Beans
Shredded Cabbage Salad
Fruit Sundae
Coffee

Lamb is well suited for broiling and rib and loin chops well deserve their popularity But it is well to remember that there are other cuts of lamb which may be successfully broiled Ground lamb from breast, neck shank or shoulder shaped into patties and with a bacon strip wrapped around each is delicious when broiled

Broiled Lamb

Another way of preparing lamb for broiling is to have the meat cut into cubes and placed on a skewer Alternating with the cubes of lamb you may use bacon squares, mushroom caps, slices of tomato, stuffed olives or any other similar food which you prefer Meat cut from the less demanded portions of the lamb can be used in this way, yet this skewered lamb is fine enough to serve at any luncheon or dinner party

Ground beef also takes on new tastiness when broiled It may be shaped into patties or shaped in the form of a porterhouse steak

Your broiler may be used conveniently to broil bacon or ham slices

Combination Grill

The combination grill is one of the newer ideas which has proved very popular either for quickly prepared easily served family meals or for company luncheons or dinners There is a thrift angle here too since left-over vegetables can be browned with the meat to form tempting combinations Fruits may be included such as broiled bananas peach halves apple slices and so on

For children whose appetites may need a bit of coaxing, these combinations of broiled ground meat and vegetables are usually very appealing

There is a further saving in time and effort in the fact that these combination grilled meals can be attractively arranged in the kitchen and served as "plate dinners Or fireproof platters may be used and the food served directly from them making fewer dishes to wash

Choplets.

Have the meat retailer remove the breast bone from breast of lamb and cut a pocket in one end Stuff the cavity very tightly with ground lamb Chill thoroughly Slice between the ribs to make chops Place these slices on the broiler rack so that the surface of the meat is three inches below the source of the heat Brown on one side Season with salt and pepper turn and brown on the second side Allow about seven to eight minutes for each side

Slices of bacon and bananas, cut lengthwise placed on the broiler rack when the choplets are turned make tempting accompaniments for the lamb

Skewered With Pineapple.

Have two pounds of lamb from breast or shoulder cut into inch squares Sprinkle with salt and pepper and place on skewers, alternating a cube of lamb, one of sliced pineapple and a square of bacon Broil slowly, turning so that all sides are evenly browned Serve with hot steamed rice

Beef Patties

1 pound ground beef
1½ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons grated onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup milk
½ cup shredded bran
3 strips bacon
4 peeled firm bananas
Melted butter
1 egg

Mix beef egg salt and seasonings Add milk to bran and soak for five minutes Combine the two mixtures and form into eight patties about an inch thick wrapping each with a strip of bacon Arrange the meat on the broiler rack, allowing about three inches between the surface of the meat and the source of the heat Broil about five minutes, or until brown, then turn Brush bananas with butter sprinkle with salt and place on rack Continue broiling about five minutes or until bananas are tender

Choplets Add Variety to Menus

Something new in broiled lamb are these "choplets," made by having the breast bone removed from the breast of lamb, and a pocket made from the end The cavity is packed with ground lamb Then the meat is sliced between the ribs and broiled like any other lamb chops Bananas cut in halves lengthwise, with a slice of bacon on each half are broiled with the chops long enough to cook the bacon Little lima beans are a good vegetable accompaniment for this tasty dish

Having Party? Here's Dishes

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Director of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

The harvest moon swings high in the sky, the corn is husked, the pumpkins and squash are lying in golden mounds, the whole world smells of apples and cider, and it's time for the ghosts to walk and for the parties to begin

What kind of a Halloween party are you going to have this year? Suppose we just suggest a recipe or two for a frolic supper

Jellied Cider Salad.

2½ cups cider
2 tablespoons granulated gelatine
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped apple
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped nut meats
Cress

Soften the gelatine in one-half a cup of the cider Heat the remainder of the cider to the boiling point, add the gelatine and stir until dissolved . Add the salt Cool the mixture and when it begins to congeal fold in the apple, celery and nuts, and place the mixture into individual moulds Chill thoroughly and when ready to serve unmould on nests of cress Accompany with Lemon French Dressing

Apple Sweet Potato Pie

Temperature 350 deg Fah
Time 45-50 minutes
Plain pastry
1½ cups cooked sweet potato, strained
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
⅛ teaspoon clove
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon granulated gelatine
2 tablespoons cold water
2½ cups sweetened apple sauce
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Line a nine-inch plate (pie) with the pastry. Mix the potato with the eggs, and add the sugar, cinnamon, ginger, clove and salt. Stir in the milk; pour the mixture into the shell and bake as indicated Remove from the oven and cool In the meantime, soften the gelatine in the cold water for five minutes and stir into the hot applesauce, blend thoroughly Spread a layer of the applesauce over the top of the pie and chill thoroughly When ready to serve, remove from the refrigerator and spread the top with a layor of the cream whipped, and sweetened with the confectioners' sugar

Frosted Doughnuts.

2 cups bread flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger,
1 cup hot riced potato
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar

Sift together the flour, salt baking powder, nutmeg and ginger Put the butter into the potato and, when melted, blend well Cool the mixture and then add the eggs and the sugar Stir in the dry ingredients that were sifted together Turn onto a lightly floured board and roll one-half an inch thick Cut with a doughnut cutter and fry in deep fat heated to 365 deg Fah. As the doughnuts come to the surface during cooking, turn often until they are the desired brown. Remove from the fat and drain on unglazed paper. Cool and frost.

Halloween Cocktails

¾ cup grapefruit juice
¾ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
⅓ cup sugar (or more)
1 pint ginger ale
Fresh mint

Blend together the grapefruit juice, orange juice and lemon juice. Stir in the sugar. Chill thoroughly When ready to serve, add the ginger ale. Pour into small glasses and sprinkle the mint, that has been chopped fine, over the top. Accompany with crackers spread with cream cheese flavored as desired and garnished with bits of green pepper.

Always wipe the inside of a fowl thoroughly before stuffing it, otherwise the stuffing is likely to be soggy.

Steals Car for 'Date,' Locks Salesman In Old Trunk

YOUTH HOPED TO IMPRESS GIRL FRIEND

Victim May Die; Thief Phones Hospital in Effort to Save Man's Life.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Frank Humel, 20, proudly credited his conscience today with having saved the life of the automobile salesman he slugged, bound, and locked into a trunk so he could take his girl to a dance in a shiny, new automobile.

But there was a strong probability that his victim's life had not been saved. Frank McGill, 55, was in a critical condition of a fractured skull and other injuries in St. John's hospital and physicians feared he would die. If he does, Humel, who is now charged with robbery and assault, will be charged with murder.

Humel had disposed of McGill and was driving his girl, Iona Sotach, 18, to a dance Saturday night when the thought occurred to him that perhaps he had been too violent. He parked at the curb, asked Miss Sotach to wait, and telephoned the hospital.

"You'll find a man in a trunk in the yard at 38-13 33rd street, Astoria," he said, and hung up.

Drove Merrily On.

Returning to Miss Sotach, they drove merrily to the dance.

The hospital called police who went to the address, which is that of Humel's home, and found the trunk in the backyard. McGill's mouth had been tied, his wrists bound to his knees. He was unconscious.

The home is that of Humel's mother, a widow. She had been away from home all evening and had no idea how the trunk got into the yard. It belonged to one of her daughters. But police found blood on the stairs and waited for her son to return. When he did, with the dawn Sunday, they arrested him.

Humel said he had lured McGill to the house by saying he was ready to sign a contract to buy a car. He already had a car but felt he should have a new one to impress Miss Sotach.

"You see," he said, "I had a heavy date."

Police Look For Capacity Crowd At Ball Tonight

Mansfield police will be hosts at the Coliseum tonight for the sixth annual police ball which is expected to attract the largest crowd in the history of the event.

While advance sales indicate a record attendance, tickets will be available at the Coliseum for last-minute purchasers, police said.

The dance is scheduled to begin at 9 p. m. with the grand march an hour later headed by Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Mrs. Bates and other members of the police department and their wives. Music will contiuue until 1 a. m.

Ace Brigode and his Virginians, nationally known radio dance band which played for last year's ball will return to Mansfield to furnish music for the event.

All members of the police force will be required to attend the ball in uniform, Bates said. During their absence from duty state highway patrolmen and deputy sheriffs will take over their beats.

Proceeds of the ball, sponsored by the Police Recreation club, will be used to purchase equipment and the annual supply of ammunition for target practice.

The whereabouts of those Ohio State-Northwestern tickets lost by Herbert Slough, Mansfield insurance man, is still a mystery, but he and his party witnessed the game from the seats for which his original tickets called for. Slough obtained four duplicate tickets. If the lost ones were found they were not used for there was no other claimants for the seats at the game.

Horace D. Rogers, Westwood avenue, was on the proverbial "spot" Saturday. He wanted the Tygers to win the Sandusky football game but still he didn't want to see Sandusky lose. The reason was this: Rogers and Paul Snyder, Mansfield coach, were teammates on the Millersburg high school team. Later at Miami university, he was a teammate of Bob Whittaker, Sandusky coach. But being a Mansfielder now, Rogers rooted for the Tygers, who won, incidentally, 9 to 0.

There's a lot of "smoke" in the huge puff ball George Casper, 33 Raymond avenue, found along the North Main road yesterday. The record fungi, which is on display in The News-Journal window, is more than a foot in diameter and weighs over five pounds. It is still in the "green" stage, but when it is ripe the huge ball will emit a dense cloud of red smoke if stepped on or dropped.

Mansfield will have an opportunity to see the giant snow cruiser, made for the government's forthcoming Antarctic exploratory expedition sometime the latter part of the month when it is taken from Chicago to Boston where it will be placed on board ship. The big machine, which looks like a cross between an overland bus and a tank, will be tried out in the Indiana sand dunes after leaving Chicago. It will stop at Fort Wayne, Mansfield and Akron. It weighs 45,000 pounds and has wheels that weigh three tons each including 10-foot rubber tires that weigh 1,500.

* * *

Dog Warden William Miller and Anton Moritz, courthouse custodian, were pretty disgusted with the Mansfield football team Saturday until they found they had been "rooting" for the wrong team and Mansfield was winning. The pair, who were not familiar with the Mansfield team's uniforms, mistook the Sandusky boys for the Mansfield players until some one told them they were not only in the Sandusky cheering section but they were backing the Sandusky players as well. Miller even accused the printer of putting the wrong numbers on the programs.

PLEA IGNORED

Mt. Vernon Attorney Bisbarred on Embezzlement Charges.

MT. VERNON —(AP)— Stanley W. Goodrich, 34, former title abstractor for the Muskingum conservancy district, was disbarred by Common Pleas Judge Guy B. Findley of Elyria here today on charges if issuing worthless checks and embezzling approximately $800 from estates under his administration.

Goodrich entered no denial of the charges, prepared by a grievance committee of the Knox County Bar association, and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

"If there were only one or two transactions, we might feel willing to forgive," Judge Findley asserted in handing down his decision. "But where we have a long series of transactions which are criminal in their nature."

HUNT HEAD OF MURDER VICTIM

Pennsylvania Police Search Swamp for Clues in 'Mad Butcher' Slaying.

(By Associated Press)

NEW CASTLE, Pa.—Hip-booted state police and county detectives sloshed through the "murder swamp" at nearby west Pittsburgh today in search for the head of a man police said might have been slain by Cleveland's "mad butcher of Kingsbury Run."

The victim's body, decapitated and partially burned, was first thought to be that of a woman when discovered Friday, but an autopsy revealed it was man in his twenties.

A few pieces of clothing, partly burned, furnished the only clues to his identification.

Motor Policeman Robert McCullough said:

"If we can find the head, there is a chance we may identify the victim . . . As it is now we have nothing to work on because we couldn't get fingerprints."

Wads of newspaper had been burned in the clenched fists of the man to obliterate his fingerprints.

Detective Peter Merlyo of Cleveland said the killing resembled in some respects the 12 torso murders in the Ohio city during the past three years. New Castle is about 100 miles from Cleveland.

PHYSICIANS HOLD THIRD SESSION

150 Expected For Two Lectures Here Wednesday Evening.

Nearly 150 North Central Ohio physicians are expected to be in Mansfield Wednesday night for the third session of the Ohio Medical association's regional post-graduate lecture course.

Speakers at the meeting, scheduled to start at 7 p. m., will be Dr. Charles W. Pavey, Columbus, and Dr. Johnson McGuire of Cincinnati. The session will be in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Dr. Pavey will talk on "Obstretrics" and Dr. McGuire's subject will be "Protecting the Heart of the Patient with High Blood Pressure."

HOSPITAL AGAIN WINS PLACE ON NATION'S APPROVED LIST

Mansfield General hospital today was one of 2,720 institutions in the United States, Canada and several other countries placed on the 1939 list of approved hospitals at the 22nd annual Hospital Standardization conference which opened today in Philadelphia in conjunction with the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

Announcement was made by Dr. George Crile of Cleveland, chairman of the Board of Regents of the College.

"On the first list of approved hospitals of the American College of Surgeons 22 years ago, the names of only 89 hospitals appeared," Dr. Crile said. The balance of the approved hospitals have in that relatively short interval earned a right to appear and to be retained on the approved list.

"Even those originally approved which still appear on the list have had to strive for betterment in order to meet enlarged conceptions of the minimum standard requirements in the light of mechanical and scientific progress," he added.

General hospital has been on the approved list for more than ten years, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, superintendent said today.

Among the requirements are a modern physical plant, assuring the patient safety, comfort and efficient care; clearly defined organization, duties, responsibilities and relations; carefully selected governing board with complete and final authority in the management of the institution; competent, well trained superintendent responsible to the governing board for carrying out all policies of the hospital; adequate and efficient personnell; organized medical staff of ethical, competent physicians and surgeons; adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent medical supervision and accurate and complete medical records.

Sawyer Sanitorium at Marion and Ohio State Sanitorium at Mt. Vernon were other nearby hospitals named on the list.

REFUGEE SPEAKS

Ex-German Lawyer to Speak at 2 Meetings Here Friday.

The Richland County Bar association and Mansfield Liederkranz members will hear Dr. Ernst Fraenkel, refugee lawyer from Berlin, speak at two Mansfield appearances Friday.

Dr. Fraenkel will address the bar association at noon at the group's weekly meeting in the Mansfield Leland hotel. His topic will be "Constitutional Rights In a Totalitarian State." Atty. Joseph A. Bayer is chairman of the meeting. Bayer said Fraenkel would appear under the auspices of the Liederkranz and that the session would be open to the public.

At 8 p. m. Dr. Fraenkel will speak before the singing society members and friends in Germania hall, Fourth and Main streets. He will discuss his experiences in Berlin from 1933 to 1938 under the Hitler rule. His evening address will be in the German language.

MAJOR TO TALK

Optimists Will Hear Address On National Defense Wednesday.

James L. Zimmerman, 189 Cline avenue, a major in the reserve air corps officers of the United States army, will speak on "National Defense" at the Optimist club meeting Wednesday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Major Zimmerman recently was taken on a tour, with other air corps officers, of air bases at Wright Field, Dayton, Columbus, air field, Langley Field, Va., and Mitchell Field, Long Island. John Grabler is program chairman.

FLAMES SWEEP STORES, LODGE, DOUBLE HOUSE

Chesterville Blaze Blamed on Defective Refrigerator in Grocery.

CHESTERVILLE — Fire which was believed to have started from a defective refrigerator in a store destroyed two stores, the Masonic lodge room and a residence in Chesterville early Sunday. The loss was estimated at $16,000.

Discovered about 1:30 a. m., the flames spread so rapidly that they were out of control before help could be summoned from nearby towns.

Fire departments from Mt. Gilead, Mt. Vernon, Fredericktown, Cardington and Centerburg were called but concentrated their efforts on saving other surrounding buildings. They fought the blaze for several hours.

The fire was discovered by Miss Olive Struble who lived with her brother, Jeff Struble, in the frame residence next to the store building. The home was owned by Joe Arnold.

Ignited Month Ago.

It was believed that the fire started from an overheated motor in a refrigerator in the William Willett grocery, one of the two stores razed by the flames. The motor caught fire a month ago.

Also destroyed was the W. H. Waite Hardware store which was in the same building with the Willett store. The Masonic lodge was located on the second floor of the frame building over the two stores.

A brisk wind fanned the blaze and hindered the firemen in their attempt to keep the flames from spreading. The fire was one of the worst in the village's history.

Chesterville is 11 miles east of Mt. Gilead on state route 95 in Morrow county.

GAS LEAK CAUSES FIRE

In Mansfield, firemen from companies Nos. 1, 2 and 3, were called to the residence of Mrs. Ruth Durig, 50½ Park avenue west, at 3:15 p. m. yesterday to extinguish a fire which had developed in a stove due to a leak in the gas line, they reported. There was no damage.

GROUPS ELECT

Memorial Association Names J. G. Wallace President.

Officers for the year were elected by the Mansfield Community Memorial and Patriotic association when members met at Memorial building Saturday night.

James G. Wallace was chosen president of the organization which represents most of the veterans and patriotic groups of the city. He succeeds Russell Moore.

Other officers elected are F. Thane Shaw, vice president; Mary Beilstein, secretary; Mrs. Eugene Florey, treasurer; J. Leo Hartmann, director of publicity; T. M. Bell, grand marshal for Memorial day; Russell Moore and Walter Hill, assistant grand marshal.

The organization will not meet again until the second Saturday in April unless a special meeting is called by the president.

Chinese Vessel Carrying 400 To 500 Sinks; Big Toll Feared.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— The 180-ton Yangtze river vessel Hsin Taiki Maru, carrying 400 to 500 Chinese, capsized 12 miles from Woosung today with probable heavy loss of life.

A Japanese tug, towing two junks, was reported to have picked up 60 survivors. The British steamer Hanwo Alsop went to the rescue, but it was not known how many persons it took aboard.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Trying to Make Uncle Sam a Stooge Just More Nazi Insanity, Peg Says

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In all the Nazi record of criminal insanity nothing quite equals the vicious announcements of Hitler's press chief, Otto Dietrich, fresh from a conference with the fuehrer, that the United States will be responsible for "the most gruesome blood bath in history" unless President Roosevelt somehow persuades the British to surrender at once. This declaration amounts to a demand that the United States completely abandon neutrality and join Germany and Russia with measures short of war but sufficient to win for Hitler. Claiming sufficient strength to "annihilate" the British and voicing an intention to do so unless they surrender immediately, the Germans obviously would expect to dictate the peace in the negotiations which this country is called upon to initiate under a threat. The terms would be a complete victory for everything that Nazi-Communism is and Americanism is not, but, nevertheless, failure to comply would place the war guilt on the United States.

* * *

Hitler, it is noted, claims that the war has not really started as yet and will not start until the president indicates that it is not this country's business to relieve him of the necessity of fighting for his conquest. The evil of this proposal is not all apparent in the terms which Hitler chose to announce through his more or less human loudspeaker of the press department.

It follows that if the American people do not comply Hitler will hold them to blame for any inconvenience, which it can only be hoped would be slight, to which he would be forced in annihilating his enemies in the field. He would naturally intend to inflict some punishment on the erring sisterhood of democratic states across the water, and, although he hasn't yet decided what the penalty would be, it may be taken for granted that it wouldn't be trivial.

* * *

The proposal naturally starts American thought back-tracking along the road which led to this war, and among the landmarks on the path are reminders that the American people not only fed the Germans sumptuously when they were starving after the kaiser's World war but poured millions of dollars to eradicate German slums and built great public improvements which then were calmly stolen through repudiation. It is remembered also that the money of Americans who did business in Germany was stolen by a somewhat similar process which forbids foreigners, who invested in good faith at Germany's invitation, to collect their earnings or salvage their capital.

* * *

The record of the United States in such works and in official relations was one of generosity and encouragement to the Germans until, under Hitler, they again began to rattle the sword that drew first blood the last time and marched to crush weak people striving toward freedom and self-respect in feeble democracies along her borders. The Nazi record, on the contrary, is one of ingratitude, theft, insult and, now, a threat.

The American conscience is in very good shape but it is against the American way of reasoning to admit that they are war-guilty in declining, as they doubtless will, to win bloodless conquests for Hitler. He could as well have said that the blood of Poland was on American hands because this nation neglected the opportunity to proceed against him with some measures short of war.

* * *

By this process the United States would become Hitler's stooge whenever he chose to strike down a victim, obliged to force a surrender or assume the guilt for something which is awful enough by its own name of war, but which in the jovial German phrase, "blood bath," is even more hideous.

The sane mentality is unable to follow Hitler's reasoning, however, for it was Germany, not Britain and France, which was always marching and mobilizing, always parading guns, threatening war and frequently invading and conquering an "annihilating" force until the British and French at last came to a stand.

The United States invaded no country, threatened no country and had, at the most and only for a few days, only 50,000 soldiers, regular and national guard, under arms in one mass.

The British, on their part, might just as reasonably, if not more so, call on the president to compel Hitler's abdication as the only way of preventing "the most gruesome blood bath in history."

Hitler is a man of little patience and terribly vengeful nature, and his press chief has put this country on warning that the question whether the Americans will be drawn into the war is not theirs to decide but his.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There'll never be another like "Uncle Carl" Laemmle, the movie pioneer now gone.

The open door to film riches through which he came, an Oshkosh clothier who had been a German immigrant, long since has closed. It may be possible today for some obscure little man to pyramid a nickelodeon into a multi-million dollar business, but it is not probably.

Movies are big business today. They were a freak amusement enterprise when little Carl Laemmle, in 1906, changed his mind about investing his savings in a chain of five-and-ten stores and bought a five-and-ten movie house instead. Carl Laemmle helped tremendously (by his fight on the patents company which cleared the way for his own and other independent productions, and then by his own contributions to the screen) to make the movies big business.

The little man is gone and buried now, and eulogies have been delivered. But the eulogies do not picture the quiet, amazing little man—he was 5-feet-2—who will always be a Hollywood legend.

Nobody mentioned, for instance, Uncle Carl's passion for slogans. This dated back to his pre-picture years, when he used to admire the advertising handiwork of the man who was to become his film associate for many years, R. H. Cochrane. Uncle Carl was a thwarted exploitation man. His favorite slogan, perhaps, was "It Can Be Done." Around Universal, in the old days, bookends featuring that slogan, were prominent. "Use the brains God gave you" was another.

The little old man was a gambler in pictures and at parties. He was first to spend a million on a movie ("Foolish Wives") and he was, by the same token, the last usually to lay down his hand at cards.

He was sentimental in a way few producers are or can be, to his home town of Laupheim, Germany, he has given thousands of dollars; to relatives and friends, by scores, he gave jobs and gifts of security proportions; from Laupheim he brought over many refugees from Nazi rule, guaranteeing their support; and his last years were clouded by one regret; he could not revisit his native land, which was no longer the Germany he had known.

They speak of his courage in fighting the patents company; more humanely typical was his bravado in collecting old clothes, while the U. S. was at war with Germany, for the sufferers in his native Laupheim. Think back on those days, and you know that that was courage!

Laemmle was a quiet fellow, not a ranter; although he spoke with a heavy accent, it was usually in correct English. He was czar of Universal, even after (to the then general manager's surprise) he made his son Junior, newly 21, general manager. "I can spank Junior at home, and can spank him here," he said once reinstating a dismissed employe.

With a little time, he could have remained in this business he loved. The films he needed to save the old studio, had they been ready at the time, could have tided him over neatly.

It is curious that the one type of film for which he had no use, although that type rescued the old U from the doldrums more than once, was horror. Junior loved it, and made it—but the old man didn't see "Frankenstein" for months after it was a hit. He didn't like fright stuff.

Supplies Trip Euclid for Fifth Straight Grid Victory

COACH Earl McMullen's Automotive Supplies are back home today with their most important victory of the season written into the record book.

* * * * *

The Supplies invaded Cleveland Sunday to face a heavier Euclid Sparton aggregation and when the gruelling battle was over, they had tallied a 12 to 0 win for their fifth straight triumph of the year.

Although outweighed approximately 12 pounds per man, the Mansfield combine smashed over touchdowns in the first and second quarters to topple the Clevelanders.

Led by Al Schwaner, who tallied both markers, the Supplies had to stage several thrilling goal line stands in the second half before emerging the winner.

Schwaner, whose play this year has been a highlight of the McMullen-coached eleven's victories, gave his team a 6-0 lead midway in the opening chapter by knifing through center from the two-yard stripe.

A 40-yard touchdown drive in the second quarter was climaxed when Schwaner went over from the five.

After taking the lead, the Automotive Supply aggregation faced a difficult assignment in fighting the touted Euclid outfit from crossing into Mansfield pay territory.

Despite the fact that Cleveland had the Supplies on the defense most of the second half, the winners managed to threaten twice. Once the Mansfielders marched to the Euclid 10 and again to the 12, but pass interceptions ended the threats.

* * * * *

Cleveland marched to the Mansfield 12 several times, but only once, in the third frame, did it manage to reach the 10-yard stripe.

SCORES 52 POINTS

BROTHERS ON CLUB

Two sets of brothers grace the roster of the 1939 Ohio State football squad—they are Campbell and Jack Graf of Columbus, whose father was a former Buck gridder, and Esco and Elno Sarkkinen of Fairport Harbor. Sarkkinen to Sarkkinen is a possible Buck passing threat.

PAST football editions of Mansfield high schools have beaten Sandusky by greater margins than the Tygers did Saturday, but victory was never sweeter than the last one.

* * *

It ended a victory famine for the Tygers in the Mansfield-Sandusky rivalry that started in 1925, the year Coach J. Russell Murphy lost to the Blue Streaks, 18 to 0, in his Mansfield coaching debut.

* * *

Hershey.

This defeat ended the rivalry until 1935 when it was renewed with Sandusky again the winner, this time by a 33 to 6 margin.

* * *

Sandusky took over the Tygers, 6 to 2, in 1936, 6 to 0, in 1937 and 45 to 0, in 1938.

* * *

Mansfield and Sandusky tangled six times on the gridiron previous to Murphy's first year as head coach of the Tygers, and each team won three games.

* * *

Saturday's satisfying 9 to 0 triumph was the first victory for the Tygers over Sandusky since 1924 when Mansfield won, 6 to 0.

If any boy deserved a good cry Saturday it was Jim Lemunyon, who kicked the field goal. After booting the ball between the uprights, Lemunyon was taken out of the game, and he was literally smothered by embraces of the coaches and teammates. The little hero just let the tears drop where they may. Can't remember ever seeing a Tyger greeted on the bench in such manner.

* * *

Henke Pulls Smart Stunt In Last Period.

PERHAPS the smartest play witnessed in the ball game was pulled by Martin Henke, Coach Snyder's junior "find". The desperate Sanduskians, deep down in their own territory, in the fourth period, threw a flat pass on fourth down. It sailed right into Henke's hands, but he deliberately dropped it like it was hot coal. Had Henke held on to the ball, it would have been Mansfield's in midfield. His mental alertness gave the Tygers the pigskin on Sandusky's 36, where Sandusky forfeited it on downs.

* * *

Capt. Mike Horvath's protection of the "weak" side of the Mansfield line against passes was a highlight of the Tygers' defense. Mentor Snyder thought. But Snyder had plenty of praise for the other Tygers, too.

* * *

The most beautiful run of the game was reeled off by Howard Hershey in the third period when he swept his own right end for 37 yards. He was forced out of bounds by Geno Balconi on Sandusky's 25. But the gain was nullified by an offside penalty.

* * *

Wonder what those "downtown coaches" who predicted a Sandusky victory by 25 to 50 points thought about over the week-end.

* * *

Hershey got off some good kicks and some bad ones, with his quick boots being a deadly weapon. Once he learned that Balconi could be stopped from lengthy returns of punts, Hershey booted the leather down the middle and got off one kick of 56 yards. He averaged 34 yards in 13 kicks to 36 for Fleming, the former's average being reduced by one out-of-bounds kick of 12 yards and another of 20.

* * *

Hershey, Balconi Stage Offensive Duel.

THE Hershey boy was the leading Mansfield ground gainer with 76 yards. Henke picked up 24 and the other Tyger ball carriers contributed only 15 to the advance. Balconi paced the Sandusky attack with 51 yards in 19 attempts. Thrown for losses four times by Tyger ends, Balconi's longest gain was 18 yards.

* * *

Most of the penalties inflicted against Mansfield late in the game were charged against too many "time-outs". The Tygers lost 60 yards in penalties against only 20 for Sandusky.

* * *

And, by the way, didn't you think that Mansfield also won the hard decision Saturday?

Tygers Make Snyder's Prophecy Come True

Whip Sandusky, 9-0, to Avenge Past Defeats

Mansfield, Idle Next Saturday, Takes Advantage of Breaks to Stop Streaks Before 7,000.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

WHEN handed the coaching reins at Mansfield high school this fall, Paul Snyder realized that he inherited a load of headaches from his predecessor, J. Russell Murphy.

The first headache was supplied by Massillon. Headache No. 2 came with the New Philadelphia game. Then there was the little meeting with Sandusky, an annual headache for Mr. Murphy.

Not only were the Tygers not accorded a chance to win from the Blue Streaks, but the football public expected to see another debacle like the Massillon massacre.

Only one man had confidence in the Tygers, and that person was Snyder, who said on the day that he took the coaching job, "Guess I've got to beat Sandusky."

If Snydes feared the outcome of the tussle with Sandusky after his charges were victimized by Massillon and New Philadelphia, he refused to admit it.

"Sandusky can be beaten," Snyder prophesied two days before the Blue Streaks' invasion of Stadium field, and Saturday his Tygers bore out his belief.

Presenting a brand of football that excelled any performance staged this season, the Tygers struck twice with devastating effect in the second half to repulse the once-defeated Sanduskians, 9 to 0, before 7,000 startled onlookers at the west end ball yard Saturday.

This victory realized Snyder's most cherished ambition, but it was no more pleasing to the Tyger tactician than to the Mansfield football-goers for whom it eased the sting of past defeats.

* * *

It definitely provided revenge for the 6 to 0 upset defeat that knocked the Tygers out of a share of the state title with Massillon in 1937.

* * *

Snyder's Strategy Works Perfectly.

SNYDER'S strategy worked out perfectly. The Tygers played a defensive ball game, waited for the "breaks" and, when they presented themselves, they knew how to take advantage of them.

Sandusky controlled play during the greater part of the first half, but the Tygers were the aggressors after the intermission. The Tygers threw caution to the wind after the field goal had injected new life into them.

Capt. Mike Horvath's intercep-

The action above shows Harold Hershey on his 15-yard touchdown run which gave the Tygers a 9 to 0 victory over Sandusky at Stadium field Saturday. Dick Fleming, safety man, is shown making a desperate lunge at the flying Hershey.

A dramatic scene followed Jim LeMunyon's field goal which gave the Tygers a 3 to 0 lead over Sandusky in the third period of their annual game before 7,000 at Stadium field Saturday. On his return to the bench, LeMunyon was literally mobbed by his teammates. The above photo shows LeMunyon, with his face cupped in his hands, trying to hold back a stream of tears. The kick won the ball game, although the Tygers added a touchdown later for good measure.

Bantam Eleven Clicks

Kurick, Bush Lead Adams Team to 12-6 Victory in First Home Appearance.

ADAMS' bantam weight football warriors turned in an impressive performance Sunday in their debut before Mansfield fans when they turned back the South Akron Merchants, 12 to 6, at Blue Goose field. It was the Adams teams initial triumph of the season.

* * *

An alert Mansfield pass defense set the stage for the club's two touchdowns in the second period.

* * *

The first Mansfield break came early in the quarter when Bob Wise intercepted a desperate Akron aerial on the Merchants' 30 yard stripe. Then Wise and Ted Bush alternated to carry the pigskin to the invader's one and Wise crossed the goal on a gallop around right end.

Mansfield's second score came shortly after when Mike Hallabrin snagged another of the Akron team's heaves on the loser's 28 and galloped over standing up. Fred Hallabrin's attempted placements for the extra points were wide.

Akron, relying on its passing attack to overtake the Mansfielders' advantage, finally began clicking near the end of the half and marched 62 yards for its lone tally.

Fenwick, the visitor's principal ground gainer, tossed a long pass to Myers who caught the ball on the Mansfield 38 and outran the safety man to score. Fenwick's placement for the point was blocked by the fast-charging Mansfield forward wall.

* * *

The Merchants unleashed a wild passing attack throughout the second half, but the Mansfield secondary held the situation in hand until the final gun.

* * *

The Adams' club, which chalked up 10 first downs to five for Akron, completely outplayed the losers, but found it impossible to again penetrate Akron pay dirt.

Capt. Carl Kurick and Bush were outstanding for Mansfield. Fenwick of Akron was injured in the fading minutes of the game and had to leave the contest.

Hangs Up First '300' Of Season

Ray Clark of Fremont Rolls Perfect Game in N. C. O. Match at Meder Alleys.

THE first perfect bowling score registered on the Meder Recreation alleys this season was chalked up Sunday by Ray Clark of the Fremont Pennzoils in an N. C. O. Traveling league match against the Liederkranz club.

It was also the first "300" score rolled on the alleys since Ralph Schad turned the trick two years ago in a Commercial B league match.

* * *

The diminutive Clark produced his spectacular score in the second game, and he crossed over on the "Brooklyn" side only twice. Once in the fourth frame and again in the last frame, but both were solid hits, the huge crowd which witnessed the performance agreed.

Clark sandwiched his "300" game for which he will receive an award from the A. B. C. between scores of 185 and 221.

* * *

His 706 total led the Fremont club to a 2910 series and a pair of victories over the Liederkranz club, led by Bill Donnellan's 657 and Henry Michaels' 608. The visitors collected 1105 pins in the second game for a new season mark at the alleys.

* * *

Donnellan also accounted for a brilliant second game, shooting a 266. He opened with a spare, followed with a "double" and another spare and struck until his last ball, which collected eight pins. He paced his teammates to a 2872 count.

In the second half of the twin bill, the Ritz club, although outscored 2822 to 2733, won two games from Fremont, with Clark collecting only 595 pins.

J. Cervinski Tallies Three Markers in Easy Win.

Paced by J. Cervinski, who tallied three touchdowns, the Polish All Stars walloped the Northeast End Lightweight football team, 47 to 14, in a setto at Taylor Disc field yesterday.

CASH LOANS $20 TO $500 ON THE "FIT-YOUR-BUDGET" PLAN

Read how you can borrow without endorsers and repay in small monthly installments—No credit inquiries of friends or relatives—Prompt, private service

NOW you can apply for a loan on a helpful "fit-your-budget" plan. You borrow without endorsers and repay in monthly installments of the amount that best fits your income. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may repay in larger installments and thus reduce the cost.

Suppose you need $100 and can conveniently repay $9.46 a month. Twelve such payments will repay your loan in full, including charges. Or if you wish smaller payments, $4.46 per month for 30 months will repay a $100 loan.

Simple to borrow at Household

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is tell us your needs. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. Loans are made on furniture, car or note. Friends or fellow-workers don't have to sign the loan papers with you. You get your loan promptly, privately and without embarrassment.

Choose the plan that fits your budget

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment which fits your budget. See how you may make very small payments if you wish. Or you may pay larger installments and pay up sooner. Note how little your loan costs if you repay in a short time. A loan of $100 repaid in four monthly installments costs only $5.04.

One rate to everyone

Household has only one price—the same rate to all, whether new customers or former borrowers.

In case of sickness or unemployment, Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Learn more without obligation

Don't get a loan anywhere until you learn all about Household's "fit-your-budget" plan. Read the table carefully. Then phone or visit us for further information.

This table is based on prompt repayment. You may pay ahead of schedule if you wish. Advance payment reduces the cost of your loan proportionately since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments are calculated at Household's rates of 2% per month on loans up to $300 and 6% per year on balances above $300 up to $500. These rates are less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law in Ohio.

We guarantee the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You still pay less if you pay your loan ahead of schedule.

Tygers Make Snyder's Prophecy Come True.

tion of Ernie Thomas' short pass over the line turned the tide of the battle in Mansfield's favor shortly after the start of the second half.

LeMunyon

Beside a stream of blockers, Horvath galloped to the nine-yard line before a desperate Sandusky tackle brought the Tyger leader to the ground.

To protect the chance for a field goal if a touchdown was denied, Howard Hershey swept to his right on the first play, and placed the ball directly in front of the goal posts, although losing two yards.

Martin Henke picked up the loss on the next play on a dive through center, and, on third down, Dave Templeton bored to the five.

Jim LeMunyon was sent into the ball game at this stage, and, with Hershey holding the ball, booted it squarely between the uprights for what proved to be the winning points.

Mansfield tallied its touchdown midway in the fourth period after Dick Fleming, attempting to pass, was hit by an army of tacklers and fumbled, Templeton recovering the oval.

* * *

On the first play, Hershey ran wide to his left behind a string of blockers to score standing up. LeMunyon's attempt to convert from placement was wide.

Tygers Idle Until Akron Kenmore Game.

THIS week the Tygers will be idle as far as scheduled competition is concerned, but there will be no lull in practice field activities. The bengal squad will resume work for their remaining games with Canton McKinley, Akron Kenmore, Ashland and Shelby.

The Akron club will supply the opposition for the Tygers at Stadium field Oct. 28.

Chief of the reasons why Mansfield broke the Sandusky supremacy was a revamped lineup. The new lineup found John Pfahler at an end, Russ Beer at a tackle, Capt. Horvath at a guard and Henke in the backfield.

These changes, evidently, have ended Snyder's lineup experiments.

Horvath

Pfahler was brilliant, but performed no more spectacularly than Gene Miller on the other wing, particularly in the second half. Beer proved that he was a tackle, not an end. Horvath gave his greatest performance of the year, especially on the defense. Twice he intercepted passes.

Henke, despite his 150 pounds, convinced his coach that lack of weight was no handicap to a fullback if he has the heart, and he proved that he has the courage as well as the ability.

But don't forget little Howard Hershey when handing out bouquets. Hershey sparked the Tygers' offensive drives, and scored the touchdown which made the Mansfield victory secure.

Templeton did a remarkable job in the line on the defense, and tossed three pass completions, not to mention a few other perfect heaves that receivers dropped. His selection of plays was above reproach.

There were many others who contributed to the victory, particularly LeMunyon, substitute halfback, who literally set the stands afire with the perfect field goal which gave the Tygers a 3 to 0 advantage in the third period.

Mansfield accomplished a feat Saturday that no other Sandusky foe succeeded in doing this season. That was to stop Geno Balconi, brilliant Blue Streak halfback.

Balconi was a constant threat, mind you, but the slippery-hipped ball toter did not cross the goal line. Even Toledo Waite, the only other club to defeat the Streaks this season, was unable to deny Balconi a touchdown.

* * *

Fleming, Sandusky colored star, did not repeat in the manner in which he performed in the Streaks' 45 to 0 victory over Mansfield last year, but his kicks proved to be the visitors' most destructive defensive weapon. Several times he punted from his own territory across the Mansfield goal line.

* * *

Tygers Play Alert Football to Triumph.

THE Tygers played alert and aggressive football, and even before they had a lead that could be called safe, they tossed the leather around the gridiron in a reckless manner.

Apparently, this display of courage had more to do with discouraging the late Sandusky challenges than anything the Tygers did.

Short Mansfield out-of-bounds punts set up several brilliant scoring opportunities for the Blue Streaks, but Sandusky never passed the 22-yard marker. In the second half, Coach Bob Whittaker's men failed to dig within 48 yards of the Mansfield goal.

Sandusky, with the aid of a penalty, reached Mansfield's 27 late in the opening period, and this threat was stopped by Pfahler, who threw Balconi for a six-yard loss.

Hershey recovered Fleming's fumble on the 25 near the end of the first period, and the Tygers held for downs on the 22 in the second frame.

The only time that Sandusky held the Tygers when they reached deep into scoring domain was early in the final period when they marched from their own 21 to the Streaks' 11, where the ball was lost on downs. Two Templeton-to-Hershey passes, which netted 39 yards, featured the parade.

Sandusky held the edge in first downs, 9 to 4, but the Tygers outgained the invaders, 179 yards to 165.

Junior High Teams Battle to 6-6 Tie.

EARLY ARRIVALS at Saturday's Mansfield-Sandusky grid class were offered a peek at future Tygers when the Simpson Junior high school squad was split into two teams for a preliminary game.

The two squads picked by Coach Bob DeHaven fought to a 6 to 6 tie in the abbreviated game, and the bantamweights gave a nice performance. Nameth scored for the "Blues," and Kinkle crossed the goal line for the "Reds."

Mansfield Harriers Beat Streak Runners

LED by Burkholder, Yarman and Dusty, who finished 1-2-3, Coach Harry Mehock's Mansfield high harriers defeated Sandusky, 17 to 38, in a cross country race which finished on the west side of the stadium track during the Mansfield-Sandusky grid game.

Sawhill, Burton and Woodberry of Mansfield finished fifth, sixth and seventh, respectively, after Spalla, Sandusky leader. Ametter was the last Mansfielder to cross the line. He finished ninth ahead of three other Sandusky runners. Burkholder was clocked at 12 minutes, 17 seconds.

CRIME TEARS ON + + + + +

By CAROLYN WELLS

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER XXXI

"This is what I want," he said, and Green wondered that he showed no satisfaction at his success.

"Clear it all up again," Stone directed, "and here's something for your trouble."

"Thank you, sir," the handy man said, and Stone went away upstairs. He went to his room, locked the door and opened the parcel. It was wound in successive swathings of tissue paper, which Stone scrutinized with a thought of finger-prints.

"But I need no finger-print evidence to know who put this lot in the waste-basket," he told himself.

He returned to the seat he had left, in time to hear the last of the service. When it was over, Cornelia hurried away to her own room, and the assembly dispersed. Stone saw Craig and Avis go into a small reception room, quite evidently for a conference.

He hastened his steps and went in with them.

"I remember your promise, Craig," he said, "to tell me the truth about Miss Verne, if she returned. Will you tell me now, what has seemed so mysterious to me ever since I have been in this house?"

But Avis replied,

"I will tell you, Mr. Stone. It is my place to do so, and I want you to know, and to forgive."

"I shall be glad to hear your story, Miss Verne."

"Have you no idea of the truth, Mr. Stone?" she began.

"I am forced to the conclusion that there are two Miss Vernes."

"Then I will tell you," the girl went on. "You remember the day of a cocktail party at Mrs. Crosby's?"

"Yes, I saw you there."

"You did. And I daresay you thought I was Yvette Verne, as others did. But I am not. Yvette Verne is a beautiful and clever film actress. I am her stand-in. That means I represent her in her work, when occasion requires.

"I have so modeled myself on Yvette Verne, that when we are not together, I am mistaken for her. This suits Yvette, because she depends on me to do errands or accept invitations that she dislikes."

"And you do as you're told?" asked Stone.

"Most gladly. I adore Yvette. I would do anything for her. So, when at the Crosby party I met Craig, and he invited me to come here for a week-end, I was happy to say yes. But when I told Yvette about it, she was so anxious to come here herself, that she coaxed me into letting her come, and I stayed at home."

"Then you were not engaged to Harley Madison?"

"No, Mr. Stone. I never saw Harley Madison—alive.

"But—" Stone began.

"Let me finish, please. They were engaged, and that very night he was killed. When Yvette learned this, the next morning, she had no thought but to get away from here. She foresaw the She came right to our home in New York, and begged me to come back here, as Yvette. I said I could not convince the family here that I was the girl Mr. Madison had loved. But she said I must, and that if I put up my hair and wore plain black, the deception would not be noted. I had no choice, but to do her bidding. So I came back as Yvette. No question was raised, but Craig realized that I was the girl he had met at Amy Crosby's. I finally told him the whole story.

"She has gone to Hollywood," said Stone. "She is getting a divorce."

"Yes," Avis said, "but she has just learned that her very wicked husband is alive. She did not know he was, when she became engaged to Mr. Madison."

* * *

Avis looked at Stone.

"I will not trouble you more now, Avis," Stone said, gently. "I am glad to learn the truth.

Stone asked one more question. "Avis, the resemblance between you two girls is wonderful. Are you related?"

"I am Yvette's half-sister," was the reply.

* * *

Stone went into the study and called Sutton on the telephone. He told him, guardedly, that he had discovered the criminal, and he advised him not to have Hendricks at the session that afternoon.

And so, when the inquiry was resumed, there was none present, save the family and their guests and servants.

Stone interrupted.

"Miss Verne has a statement to make," he said, "and I will ask Mr. Sutton to delay his query until after she has told her story. For one has a definite and decided bearing on the other."

Avis then told the story of Yvette, her half-sister, and herself, and their separate appearances at Silver Hill. Sutton listened, amazed.

"So, you see," Avis concluded, "I am so devoted to Yvette, that I do anything and everything she wants me to.

"But, Mr. Madison," Sutton said to Craig, "you declared that you brought Miss Verne back here and waited while she entered the house, and came out again."

"Yes," Craig answered, "that was an untruth.

"These points are interesting," Stone observed, "but we are now about to consider a more serious business. That is, the identity of the murderer of two members of this household."

"Why did Yvette want to go away?" Cornelia asked Avis.

"She was frightened at the thoughts of an inquest and policemen."

"Then did Yvette or did she not go out to the ivy arbor that morning at three o'clock?"

"She did not. . . . It was I in the ivy arbor, and with me was Dick Mosby, a friend.

"Your story continues to be of absorbing interest, Miss Verne," Stone said, "but I ask your attention in another direction. I have been engaged to discover the murderer of Mr. Madison. I have made the discovery. I can state that the criminal is now with us, in this group, and I trust we may hear a confession. Will the one who killed Mr. Madison, tell us so?"

There was a long, ghastly pause.

* * *

"Since we are not to be told," Stone said. "I shall have to state my findings and thus reveal to you the awful truth. My knowledge of it came to me by two insignificant clues. One of these was the detective story you have all heard of, which contains an account of the method by which Mr. Harley Madison was killed."

Avis had no thoughts and she sat, with her hand in Craig's, and wondered who the criminal really was.

"Many fingerprints on that book's pages were identified," Stone went on. "But there were many more, which are what is called latent, that do not show and can be discovered only by a skilled use of certain chemicals. This test has been made, and prints that must surely be those of the murderer have been brought out."

"Whose are they?" asked Tom.

"Unless the criminal will speak, I shall tell you in a moment. There was another clue. When Hetty cleaned Mr. Madison's room, she found under the bed, a tiny hairpin. This she looked upon as a clue, and carried it at once to Miss Madison. Now, this, it is undeniable, might have been the tiny little hairpin that Hetty babbled about on her dying bed. Do you think so, Miss Madison?"

"It may have been," Cornelia said, her voice low and awed.

"Miss Madison," and Stone's voice was not gentle now, "cease that perjury. You are the murderer of your brother, your fingerprints are on the pages of the old book that tell how to commit that terrible crime, yours is the hand that thrust the broken knitting needle into your brother's very brain! And it was from your hair that the tiny hairpin fell, as you waited the moment for your dreadful deed! What have you to say?"

* * *

Cornelia Madison almost collapsed, her lips trembled, and then, straightening up, she said;

"You are wrong, Mr. Stone! You are so anxious to find a victim that you pick out an innocent woman! How could I get into my brother's locked room? I went upstairs long before he did, I went right to my room, and to bed."

"No, Miss Madison, you did not. You went to your own room, and asked Jenny to take off your evening gown and give you a negligee. She did so and you dismissed her. Then, you went to your brother's room. He had not come upstairs yet, and you lay down and rolled under the bed and stayed there, well hidden by the deep valance. That is why your hairpin was found on the floor under your brother's bed."

"I don't wear those little hairpins! I don't own any!"

"You don't now, but you did, then. After you heard of Hetty's delirious words about a little hairpin, you knew what she meant. And late Saturday night, after Hetty was dead, you gathered up all your hair pins, made them up in a parcel, wrapped in tissue paper, and where did you put them?"

* * *

Cornelia made no response but a low, frightened gurgle, and Stone went inexorably on;

"You went down in the basement with the parcel. Down to the room where the rubbish is put, which is to be burned in the incinerator.

"And,—listen all—in with the hairpins, which I have here," he opened a paper parcel, "there is also, the upper part of the knitting needle, of which the lower part was put to such diabolical use!"

He held up a silver-covered wire, with a round flat top.

"You somehow managed to get a knitting needle cut in two. You took the sharp end, and you waited under the bed, until you could tell by your brother's breathing that he was asleep, and then you crawled out — you had already drugged him, so there would be no interference with your diabolical plan. You accomplished it, and then you left the room by the way of the door with the spring bolt."

Cornelia fell back in her chair, limp.

"And since you seem to have no intention of making a confession," Stone went on, inexorably, "I will state, for you, that you also brought about the death of Hetty Garson."

"No, no!" moaned Cornelia, covering her eyes with her hands.

"It is all known to me. While cleaning the room, Saturday morning, Hetty found the little hairpin under the bed. Your plan of concealing yourself in the room was a stroke of genius. But Hetty, finding the hairpin, surmised the truth. She was very intuitive, uncannily so, and she took the hairpin to you, and told you her suspicions. You put her off, but you knew that she would carry the thing further, and so, right then and there, you gave her a drink of Scotch, telling her she needed a bracer. In the liquor was a dose of bichloride of mercury, which acts slowly but very surely.

"Then, you went off on the motor drive, and returned to find Hetty dead,—by your own hand."

* * *

"No, no—" Cornelia protested very faintly now.

"But I didnt kill Harley. — I didn't!" her voice rose to a shriek.

"Attempt no denial," Stone went on, "the proofs are too strong. Your fingerprints on the book were so light they were unobtainable by usual methods. But modern science knows a way.

Cornelia Madison sat bolt upright, and showed all her old time spirit and bravery.

"Ten years ago my brother's wife died. At that time I was deeply in love with a man who was devoted to me. He hadn't yet asked me to marry him, but I knew he was about to do so.

"But my brother came to me, and in his desperate grief and sorrow at the loss of his wife, he was unthinking of any one's good but his own. He asked me to come and keep house for him, and to promise him that I would never leave him, but always remain with him.

"I agreed to do so, if I might marry my friend, who I knew was about to ask me, and he would live with us, too. My brother flew into a passion, called me selfish and heartless, and said he would go away forever from such an unnatural, faithless sister.

I remained with Harley. I never saw my lover again.

"But I did my duty by my brother. I learned, as the years passed, to care for him and make him happy. I looked after him in every way. I gave up my life to him, for I loved him dearly, and I was happy in making him content. But I took upon me a vow. I solemnly swore that if ever the time should come when Harley was about to marry, I should kill him. He should never know the happiness he had denied me. For long years, there was no sign of his marrying and I rejoiced that I had stood by him, though many sad times I mourned for my lost love.

"When Harley announced his engagement, I did do all as Mr. Stone has described it. I planned it out long before and I was ready. Had I not lost that hairpin, the crime could never have been pinned on me."

With a swift and dexterous motion, Cornelia put something into her mouth, and though Stone sensed in a second what she was doing, he could not reach her in time to stop her gesture.

She had taken a tablet of prussic acid, and in a few moments was where they could never reach her again.

* * *

Craig took Avis by the arm and led her outside to the brisk, cold autumn air.

"Do not grieve," he said. "It is far better so. Aunt Cornelia could not have lived on, with that awful secret corroding her soul. Let us think of her only as she was when at her best. And soon we will go away from here and never come back."

"Do not be sorrowful," he said, "you will some day realize it is a case for gladness."

And in silence the three watched the sun set.

(THE END)

THEATERS

Famous Bathing Girls.

When the lovely Mack Sennett bathing girls were revived for the modern production of "Hollywood Cavalcade," Alice Faye, who was a mere baby when the original idea for the bathing girls was launched, was one of them. She donned the old fashioned "one-piece" bathing suits which daringly revealed the knees. Among the original Sennett bathing beauties were Gloria Swanson, Marie Prevost, Juanita Hansen, Mabel Normand and Phyllis Haver, all of whom now are out of pictures or dead. "Hollywood Cavalcade," which is at the Ohio, tells the story of the beginnings and the development of movies. Don Ameche and a number of old timers are in the picture.

* * *

Gets Results.

The love making of John Garfield may lack polish but it gets results—in the movies at least. But it isn't what he says—the author supplies the lines; nor what he does — the director tells him what to do; but the way he looks at the gals—which is all his own invention. In his screen roles the girls are made to do most of the love making, but his eyes tell them that he isn't indifferent. His latest picture is "Dust Be My Destiny," which is at the Madison. Blond Phyllis Lane appears opposite him.

* * *

Comedy At Ritz.

Exposing the racketeering that goes on behind the prize fight game is the theme of "The Kid From Kokomo," but this grim subject doesn't keep the picture from being a comedy. Wayne Morris again plays the prize fighter, this time a farm boy who is more interested in finding the mother who gave him up in babyhood than in winning the title. His manager provides a mother—and May Robson plays the dowdy old kleptomaniac who poses as his mother. Joan Blondell and Pat O'Brien are also in featured roles. The picture is at the Ritz, along with Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour and Edward Arnold in "Man About Town."

* * *

Davis At Majestic.

Two outstanding pictures are combined to make up the Majestic bill for the middle of the week, starting tomorrow. "The Sisters" brings Bette Davis and Errol Flynn in a story of San Francisco in the early 1900's. The fortunes of three sisters provides the story, with Bette Davis as the sister who wanted romance and love more than security. Anita Louise and Jane Bryan play the other sisters. "Stagecoach" is the second picture and depicts the dramatic, action-filled journey of a handful of passengers on a western stagecoach. John Wayne and Claire Trevor head the cast.

* * *

Whose Baby?

David Niven, who scored in "Wuthering Heights" and a half dozen pictures with English backgrounds, has his most important role in "Bachelor Mother," a current Park attraction. He plays a store executive who falls in love with one of his sales girls, played by Ginger Rogers. When she finds an abandoned baby, she has a merry time trying to prove that it isn't hers. In fact, she never does prove it. But the romance ends happily just the same. John Trent, as Tailspin Tommy, has some thrilling sky adventures in "Sky Patrol," a second feature.

PRICE CHANGES FRACTIONAL IN SLOW DEALINGS

Traders Keep Speculative Slate Clean Pending New War Developments.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buyers and sellers were equally wary in today's stock market and leading issues moved indifferently over a narrow range.

With the dealings the slowest since the start of the European war, fractional price changes either way ruled near the second hour.

Traders, brokers reported, showed a disposition to keep speculative slates reasonably clean pending developments in the overseas conflict. Domestic business news continued cheerful.

Bonds, commodities and foreign securities markets were uneven.

Market students scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while steelmakers continued to push production to the limit, buying was less active because most large consumers were well covered, at least for the remainder of the year, and mills can accept little, if any, additional business in the majority of products for shipment this quarter.

Establishment of first quarter prices, it was added, is indicated shortly, with the probability higher quotations on all leading products would be posted in view of recent increases in raw materials and advances already made on some finished steel grades.

The publication found that "inquiries for export steel are being offered at attractive prices in some instances but cannot be accepted except in a few cases because of the sold-up condition of the mills."

U. S. Scores In High Court In 'Trust Busting' Cases

GIVEN REVIEW ORDER IN OIL, MILK BATTLES

Government's Pleas for New Hearings Allowed; Twelve Companies Also Win.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The government today won an appeal to the U. S. supreme court for writ of reviews in oil and milk anti-trust cases in which the department of justice suffered rebuffs in its "trust-busting" campaign in lower courts.

At the same time, the high court granted a petition of 12 big oil companies and five individual oil magnates for review in the same oil anti-trust case.

In one instance, the court agreed to review action of the seventh circuit court in reversing conviction of the 12 big oil corporations in the mid-west oil price-fixing case which was tried at Madison, Wis.

The court also agreed to review action of Federal District Judge Woodward in quashing Chicago "milk" trust indictments returned under the Sherman anti-trust law.

The indictments were returned after a long investigation. The government charged the Borden and other milk companies, the Pure Milk association and individuals with engaging in price fixing both in Chicago and in the mid-west territory.

The lower court quashed the indictments on the grounds that production and marketing of agricultural products, including milk, are exempt from anti-trust laws.

In granting this review, the court postponed, until a hearing, the question of jurisdiction. It advanced the case for argument on Nov. 13.

In the oil price-fixing case, in which the court agreed to review conviction, it also agreed to consider the contention of the 12 oil companies and five individuals that errors were committed in the federal district court trial.

GETS EVIDENCE

Ashland Jurors Given State Records in Greenlun Case.

ASHLAND—J. W. Wilson, Columbus, an employe in the state highway office, was the first witness to appear before the county grand jury this morning when it re-convened after a Saturday recess.

Wilson turned over affidavits filed against Robert S. Greenlun, Ashland county highway employe which resulted in the latter being dismissed some time ago. Greenlun appealed his case and was reinstated.

The affidavits were requested by Judge H. E. Culbertson in connection with the grand jury investigation of what the judge termed "widespread perjury" in the county. The judge said he had been told that the affidavits against Greenlun were signed by a justice of the peace and a constable at Brunswick, near Cleveland, after Greenlun had assisted in breaking up a "speed trap" at Brunswick.

Arrest 8 Drivers Over Week-end; 3 Given $60 Fines

Three drivers, among eight arrested over the week-end, lost their driving rights for one year and were fined $60 each when they pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Of five others cited for careless and reckless driving, three were fined and the cases of two others were continued.

The three who were fined on the drunk driving charge were John P. Sableski, 36, of 54 Richland avenue; Donald Eckenrode, 29, R. D. 3, Mansfield, and R. H. Miller, 34, Cleveland.

Eckenrode and Sableski were arrested on Route 39, north of Mansfield, by state highway patrolmen, and Miller on Bowman street road by sheriff's deputies.

Arraigned on careless and reckless driving charges were Norman Gross, 31, of 43 Dawson avenue; E. J. Halley, Fifth avenue; Guy H. Barfield, R. D. 3, Mansfield; E. K. Shipman, Shelby, and R. J. Kinney, Columbus.

Halley and Barfield were fined $20 and costs and Gross given a $10 fine and his operator's license suspended for 30 days.

HELD IN KILLING OF BROTHER, 31

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Police held George Kostka, 27, today while they investigated the fatal shooting of his brother, Joseph F. Kosta, 31, a WPA worker, during an argument over a pair of rubber boots and some white lead.

The younger Kostka told police he interceded in an argument between Joseph and Albert Kostka, father of the two brothers and shot his brother when the latter threatened to "beat me up." Kostka died of wounds in the abdomen and left arm.

GALION TAILOR DIES AT AGE 68

Frank Mueller Stricken by Apoplectic Attack in His Store; Found Sunday.

GALION—George Frank Mueller, 68, well known Galion tailor and business man, died suddenly Saturday night in his store, 230 Harding Way East.

He apparently had been checking receipts for the day and gone to the rear of the store where he fell. His brother, Lewis, found him Sunday at 8:30 a. m. Crawford County Coroner O. R. Kackley said death was due to a stroke of apoplexy.

Born April 11, 1871, in Carey, O., he was the son of John J. and Elizabeth Mueller. His wife, Marie L. Tracht, died June 9, 1938.

Surviving are a daughter and two sons: Mrs. Chester R. Early of Toledo, Rev. Don Mueller of Coshocton and Ray C. Mueller of Lakewood. Other survivors are two grandchildren, a sister and three brothers, Lillian Mueller, Lewis, Grover, and John Mueller all of Galion.

The deceased was a member of the Galion lodge of Elks. He had been a tailor since he was 15 years old, working for his father as a youth. Later he purchased his own store.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Volk funeral home. Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of the First Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be made in Fairview cemetery here. Friends may call any time at the funeral home.

ACCIDENTS KILL 60,480 IN U. S.

Auto Fatalities Decline In 1939; Home Mishaps On Increase

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(AP)—The National Safety council reported today that 60,840 persons were killed in accidents in the United States during the first eight months of 1939.

This report was made at the opening of the 28th annual National Safety Congress, attended by 10,000 safety experts. Automobile accidents took 18,980 lives during the period. Four per cent decrease.

The council reported the death total for all types of accidents remained about the same as last year because of a heavy increase in "home" accidents.

WRECK VICTIM HELD AS ROBBER

Paroled Missouri Convict Hurt As Auto Strikes Train.

MASSILLON—(AP) — Apprehension of William Flowers, paroled St. Louis, Mo., bank robber, was announced today by Sergeant M. A. Mock of the state highway patrol.

Mock said Flowers, 33, driving an automobile crashed Saturday night into a Wheeling & Lake Erie freight train at a crossing west of here. He was taken to a Massillon hospital in a critical condition and authorities became suspicious when they found in his clothes $1,100 cash and revolver shells.

Flowers gave the hospital a telephone number to call in St. Louis to notify friends of the mishap, Mock said. This led to arrest of Frank Bass and Bass' wife Elsie in St. Louis last night, Mock said they were wanted for bank robbery.

SODA CLERK DROWNS CHILD, 5, IN THIRD N. Y. 'MERCY MURDER'

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Lodging of a homicide charge against a 26-year-old unemployed soda clerk accused of drowning his five-year-old stepson in a bathtub raised the "mercy death" issue here today for the third time within a year.

Patrolman Walter Cicack said the stepfather, Lawrence Rougeau, dazed and disheveled, stepped up to him in Union Square yesterday and told him:

"I just killed my stepson, Jimmy, because he was groaning, and I was afraid he was going crazy like his mother.

"I tied his hands and feet with neckties and held his head under the water in the tub until he stopped squirming. I left him there and came out for a walk."

Assistant Dist. Atty. Jacob Rosenblum said Rougeau's wife is an inmate of a Rockland county mental institution. He said Rougeau told him he had been influenced in his deed by reading accounts last week of the chloroforming of crippled Raymond Repouille, 13, by his father, Louis Repouille.

Repouille, 40, an elevator operator, was released yesterday in $5,000 bail. Police, who charged him with homicide, said Repouille described the killing of his blind, helpless, mentally-enfeebled son last Thursday as an "act of mercy."

A similar defense was offered in court by Louis Greenfield, middle-aged Bronx milliner who chloroformed his imbecile son, Jerry, 17, last January. A jury acquitted him of manslaughter.

REAL WINTER!

Mercury at 19 Above Zero Over Week-End.

You may not believe it, but Mansfield had 19-degree weather over the week-end, and it doesn't often get much colder than that in the winter.

The 19-degree reading was recorded about 6 a. m. Sunday by Otto Sprunger, official weather observer. It was the lowest mark reported this early in the season in 14 years. The mercury failed to get above 54 Sunday and it was 39 this morning.

Under clear skies the temperatre climbed to 66 at noon today, but the weatherman said more cold is on the way. He predicted fair and colder for tonight and Tuesday.

Thick ice froze yesterday morning and vegetation was covered with frost.

Not One Dizzy Spell Since Constipation Was Relieved. Gives "Vendol" All Praise.

Young Mansfield Matron Had Been Miserable Until Hearing of This Great Root, Herb and Alkaline Medicine. Feels Fine Now.

MRS. JAMES BENNETT, Jr.

When a person has suffered for a long time from common ailments and has tried various things to get relief, and all in vain, there is no wonder that when they finally succeed in locating the right medicine that they are so grateful they want everyone else suffering the same way to know about it. That is why Mrs. James Bennett, Jr. of 179½ N. Main Street, Mansfield is so delighted with Vendol, and why she wants others to know of Vendol. So, in a statement given the Vendol Man in the Central Drug Store, she says:

"For a long time I suffered from one of the worst cases of constipation anyone ever had. Seemed like I couldn't get a thorough bowel action and I was always taking some kind of laxative. This constipated condition made me feel bilious, dizzy spells would rush over me so I had to sit down a while; my tongue was coated, breath unpleasant, had a terrible taste in my mouth, and often had headaches, and my sleep was light and didn't rest me much.

"I tried many medicines, but until I started on Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets, relief just didn't seem meant for me.

"Vendol, however, got my bowels moving so thoroughly, smoothly, and actively in a short time that I threw out all the other laxatives and I'm depending solely on Vendol now, and I haven't had one dizzy spell lately and all my other troubles are relieved. So, from one of the most miserable persons a few weeks ago, I am now one of the happiest, and Vendol gets all the praise."

It is proven every day right here in Mansfield that Vendol gives astonishing relief from sour, acid, gassy stomach upsets; biliousness, dizzy spells, spots before the eyes, pain in back and legs, and other symptoms if due to or associated with constipation. So, if you suffer this way, come to the Central Drug Store, Corner Main and 4th Sts. and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this quick-acting Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine. All druggists sell Vendol.—Adv.

British Ready For New Sub Attack.

LONDON —(AP)— British naval observers expressed confidence today that a new German submarine offensive, which sent the battleship Royal Oak and three Allied merchant vessels to the bottom over the week-end, would be brought under control quickly.

These sources interpreted the fresh Nazi onslaught as Adolf Hitler's reply to Great Britain's rejection of his peace gestures. They predicted, however, the campaign would be halted more speedily than the one Germany launched at the outbreak of hostilities.

In the first four weeks of the war, it was recalled, enemy submarines sank nearly 150,000 tons of British shipping before first lord of the admiralty Winston Churchill was able to announce the offensive had been checked.

While Britain's navy concentrated on German undersea raiders, the nation intensified preparations to meet possible attacks from the air.

Some military men expressed belief the new submarine offensive would be accompanied by aerial attacks on British ports.

Naval experts said that while loss of the 29,150-ton Royal Oak, one of Britain's 15 capital ships, was admittedly a severe blow, it was by no means critical.

(An official announcement in Berlin said the British battle-cruiser Repulse had been hit by a torpedo.)

The British admiralty declined to comment on that German communique. A spokesman said the attitude of the admiralty was that it would not go to the trouble of "denying all these reports."

Assert Sub Fired On Ships Without Warning.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Survivors of the French liners Bretagne and Louisiane said today that German submarines attacked their ships without warning and killed or wounded more than 40 persons, including women and children, by shelling them as lifeboats were being lowered.

Five members of the crew and two passengers were lost with the Pretagne, and more than 30 persons including 10 women were wounded.

The first mate of the Louisiane was killed and six crew members were wounded.

Only quick rescue work by British warships which went to the rescue prevented a much larger casualty tool.

More than 400 persons were landed at Plymouth yesterday from the Britagne, 10,108 tons, en route from the West Indies to Great Britain; the Louisiane 6,903 tons bound from Great Britain to Havana, and the British freighter Lochavon, 9,205 tons, bound for Britain from North Pacific points and the Panama Canal.

The Louisiane was attacked at 9 o'clock Friday night, the Bretagne at 5 a. m. Saturday and the Lochavon sometime Saturday.

Survivors were landed as the admiralty announced here a probable final survivors list of the battleship Royal Oak, torpedoed probably early Saturday. The list contained the names of 414 of the approximately 1,200 officers and men in the ship, leaving 786 unaccounted for.

More than 30 survivors of the Bretagne and Louisiane were brought ashore at Plymouth on stretchers, seriously wounded by German shell fire.

STUDY CONTRACT

SHELBY — City council will study the fire protection contract between Sharon township and the Shelby fire department at its regular semi-monthly meeting at 7 p. m. today at city hall. The contract calls for an expenditure of $800 for one year.

The contract was returned to city officials after the township trustees had protested a new clause in the contract prohibiting the fire department from answering rural fire calls for muck, brush or grass fires not endangering a building.

2 DIE IN AUTO, TRAIN COLLISION

in Ohio at least 13 persons were killed in traffic mishaps.

Today's fatalities boosted Richland county's traffic toll for the year to 19, the same number as was recorded up to this time last year.

Artz and Roth were brought to Mansfield in Jones ambulance. Hemerley was taken to Shelby a motorist.

State highway patrolmen said the light sedan driven by Hemerley crashed into the train as approximately one-third of the cars had cleared the crossing shortly after midnight. They said the crossing is unprotected.

Car Lands In Ditch.

The impact tossed the auto 60 feet from the crossing and into a ditch. It was demolished. The crash loosened the under-carriage of one of the freight cars, causing it to become derailed.

Railroad traffic as well as that over the highway was held up for more than two hours. A wrecking train from Willard removed the damaged car from the train which was en route from Willard to Newark.

Artz was born in Shelby Aug. 21, 1920, and graduated from Shelby high school in June, 1938. He had been employed as a bookbinder at the Shelby Salesbook company since that time.

Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Doris and Janice, both at home.

The body was removed to the Dick and Dye funeral home where funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday with Rev. D. B. Young, pastor of First Lutheran church, and Rev. M. P. Paetznick, assistant pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

Roth was born in Shelby Dec. 5, 1919. He was a member of the Lutheran church and graduated from Shelby high school in the same class with Artz.

He is survived by his parents, three sisters, Jean and Betty at Shelby, and Mrs. Lloyd Linnean, Cleveland, and a brother, Charles, also at home.

The body was removed to the Sutter funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

In an accident at 4 a. m. yesterday, three young Ashland people were injured, none seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding got out of control at a curve in West Fourth street, just west of Ausdale avenue. The machine turned over and broke off a utility pole.

Miss Claudia Kimball, 21, the driver, received a fractured elbow and her two companions, Geraldine Strenick, 20, and Lawrence Shuster, 23, suffered lacerations and bruises.

Herman Shoemaker, 74, of 151 Newman street, sustained a fractured rib late Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Donald Parsons, R. D. 2, Mansfield, at Orange and Newman streets, police said.

Girl Hurt On Way To School.

While on her way to school this morning Lois Pike, 17, of 122 Parkwood boulevard, was struck by a motorcycle operated by J. E. Ricker, R. D. 6, Mansfield, on Middle park drive. Police said she was treated at the hospital for abrasions and lacerations.

In another accident at 6 a. m. Sunday Lloyd Froats, 28, of 48 Dudley avenue, received lacerations when his car collided with a machine operated by Conrad Urschel, 27 Elizabeth avenue, on U. S. route 42, north of Mansfield.

Autoist, 63, Hurt.

William McSorley, 63, of Lakewood, was in the General hospital today with a chest injury sustained Saturday afternoon when his car collided with a machine driven by George W. Gump, 71 South Foster street, on U. S. route 42, near Johnsville.

Janette Hudson, 19, of 190 East Fourth street, and Junior Lemon, 20, R. D. 2, Mansfield, passengers in the car were treated for body lacerations.

Gump and his daughter, Dorothy, 16, were uninjured.

Automobile collisions near Akron claimed the lives of Don Wilson, 18, of Ira, and Mrs. Frances Bluhm, of Massillon; Guy Corder, 25, at Tiffin; Esquire Shell, 39, negro, at Akron; Mrs. Loretta Cavanaugh, 32, of Mantua, at Aurora; and an unidentified hitch-hiker at Lafayette.

Robert Farrow, 18, of Columbus, died in a motorcycle accident at Worthington, and Lee Milanovich, 43, of Steubenville, met death when an automobile left a highway near Wellsburg, W. Va.

PURCHASES 230 REFRIGERATORS

Jacksonville, Fla., Housing Project Installs Mansfield Product.

Two hundred and thirty Mansfield made Westinghouse refrigerators today had been installed in a new housing project in Jacksonville, Fla., Westinghouse officials announced.

The last shipment of refrigerators from the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse was made last week as the housing project in Jacksonville's Brentwood Park section neared completion.

Eighty of the refrigerators are six cubic-foot models and the remainder are four cubic-foot capacity. The low rent apartments will be opened for occupancy immediately.

SAFETY SERVICE CENTER OPENED

Ex-Mansfielders Returns, Launches Auto Service Establishment.

Opening of a Safety Center, 66 North Franklin avenue, has been announced by L. E. McCallister and H. W. Pickens, proprietors.

The new establishment has the latest equipment for analyzing the ills of automobile motors and ignition systems as well as brakes, McCallister said.

McCallister started his career in automobile service work in Mansfield in 1913 and since then has been affiliated with Studebaker Motor Corporation as service traveler and later as supervisor of dealer activities for Chrysler, Plymouth, Dodge and DeSoto.

Pickens has years of experience in work on automobile motors as well as brakes.

Guns of all calibers were said to be participating in the French bombardment. German troop concentrations were reported observed in an area extending back from the front to a depth of 10 miles.

Meanwhile, further to the south, automobiles equipped with loudspeakers raced up and down on the German side of the Rhine broadcasting Germany's desire for peace.

In various sections of the front, German troops unfurled over their lines banners bearing slogans such as "bad luck for those who refuse to accept Hitler's peace."

The French said their artillery answered the appearance of these banners with well-aimed salvos.

The French general staff's morning communique reported "great activity in the enemy lines between the Moselle and the Saar" rivers—a 35-mile sector on the northeastern front. The communique also noted that patrols had been active during the night "in the region west of Wissembourg."

Fog and rain curtailed military activity along the entire front during the week-end, although a French communique last night said ambushes laid to snare German patrols had "obtained sought-after results," apparently meaning the capture of prisoners.

Dispatches from the frontier province of Lorraine said continued rain had caused the Meuse, Mouzon and Saonelle rivers to overflow, inundating the countryside and hampering communications.

The French were inclined to believe that if the Germans launch a heavy offensive, it will come in "a very few days," or not for a long time. Whatever comes, the French declared, their troops will be ready.

HEART ATTACK PROVES FATAL

LEXINGTON — Mrs. Naomi Myers, 85, a native of Richland county, died at her home here early Sunday of a heart attack.

She had lived in Lexington for the past 60 years. She was the widow of George B. Myers and a member of the Clearfork United Brethren church.

Surviving are three sons, Virgil L. of Detroit, Charles of Marion, Ind., and George Clyde of Lexington, and three grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Snyder funeral home here with Rev. Paul Zimmerman, pastor of the United Brethren church, officiating. Burial will be in Lexington cemetery.

TICKS AGAIN

BUCYRUS—Thanks to a Bucyrus handy-man Newton O. "Newt" Couts, Bucyrus' town clock runs again.

A recent appeal made by Crawford county commissioners for a repairman who could repair the 50-year-old clock was answered by Couts, who was able to make the repairs with little difficulty.

A new clock would have cost commissioners more than $1,400. The cost of having an expert from the factory to repair the clock was also prohibitive, commissioners stated.

ADMITS THEFT AT GAS STATION

Youth Held For Ashland Jury After Capture by Proprietor.

ASHLAND—Charles Wolf, 22, was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering before Police Judge C. W. Chorpening.

Wolf was arrested early Sunday morning after he had been captured by Carl Tingle, operator of the Hi-Speed gas station on Cleveland avenue. Tingle told police he had been missing articles of merchandise out of the station for some time and suspected Wolf. He said he hid in the station Saturday night and that at 3 a. m. Wolf pried up a window and entered the place. Tingle held Wolf captive until police arrived.

TOLD OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word was received Saturday of the death in St. Vincent's hospital, Toledo, Saturday of Mrs. Bertha Beach Sell, wife of Charles Sell. Mrs. Sell has been in failing health for two years.

The body will be brought to Bucyrus for burial in Oakwood cemetery.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1939.

Home remedies are advised for early Halloweeners, as much preferable to treatment by police officers.

Now it a good time for cities to "consolidate their gains" instead of attempting to further increase their populations.

It is generally not until an improvident youth has married that he realizes that this is a matter to which thought should be given.

Bigelow's Unsound Pension Plan

SELDOM has a proposed constitutional amendment met such immediate and widespread opposition as is being accorded the Bigelow old-age pension plan, which is to be voted on at the November election.

This "plan," presented by Rev. Herbert Bigelow, of Cincinnati, proposes a pension of $50 a month for every single person above 60, or $80 a month for man and wife.

It is another of those impractical, visionary schemes based on an idea that mere circulation of money creates wealth.

Ohio's present pension system, which has been gradually developed, costs the state around $15,000,000 a year and the federal government contributes a like amount. It is intended to provide for persons over 65 years of age who have no other means of support.

The Bigelow plan, the state tax commissioner estimates, would cost taxpayers of the state approximately $310,000,000 a year to finance, which would place an intolerable burden on every worker and cripple every other department of state government.

Almost every day last week announcement was made of additional large organizations adopting resolutions against the Bigelow pension amendment, as well as his other proposal that signatures of only 50,000 voters from any part of the state should be sufficient to secure a popular vote on any issue presented.

Further development of a sound pension system, to provide for needy aged people, is a natural trend of the times but such an objective is seriously hampered by such a proposal as is being made by the visionary Cincinnati preacher.

Pedestrians and Bicyclists

THE EXTENT to which pedestrians and youthful bicyclists figure in traffic accidents in Mansfield clearly evidences need for greater care on the part of everyone concerned in such distressing mishaps.

Use of bicycles on streets traveled by many automobiles cannot fail to be accompanied by danger, and it may be here noted that a number of young bicyclists have a disturbing habit of weaving in and out of traffic in a way that greatly increases the hazard.

Some pedestrians, also, disregard the reasonable rights of motorists by failing to use regular crossings, ignoring lights and not looking in both directions before starting to cross a street.

Safe driving, however, is not as well developed among many Mansfield motorists as it has become in a number of other cities, and legal speed limits inside the city are given little heed—probably due to lack of consistent enforcement and absence of signs stating permissible speed in various sections.

Slower driving in the vicinity of schools, more attention to stop signs, and closer observance of speed limits in residence and business districts would help materially in cutting down minor accidents—but there must also be co-operation on the part of pedestrians and school children, either afoot or on bicycles, if injuries—and occasional fatalities—are to be avoided.

No Ohio Exhibit Next Year

DECISION that Ohio will not participate in next year's continuance of the New York world's fair appears sensible.

This year's Ohio exhibit was made at a cost of approximately $140,000 and it is estimated an additional $50,000 would be required to carry through next year.

While state co-operation in world fairs held in various parts of the country have been regarded as entirely proper, the fact remains that people have become pretty much fed up on such ventures and feel inclined to let private capital do the financing hereafter rather than to draw on public funds.

In any event, with few exceptions, state exhibits are minor attractions at an exposition such is being held in New York, and are given scant attention alongside the big features.

Senatorial Oratory

THE neutrality debate in the United States senate drags on, but the galleries are no longer jammed. And, according to reports from Washington, the orators are not holding their audiences on the floor even as well as they hold visitors in the galleries. There have been some good speeches, but nothing really great. So the public loses interest.

Is it the cause or the oratory that is responsible? The cause for which the "Battalion of Death" has been fighting may not be so sacred and crucial as many senators and correspondents represented in their advance notices: but the main trouble, as far as this present comment is concerned, seems to be in the oratory. Preliminary suspicions are verified. There are no Patrick Henrys, no Websters and Haynes, no Bryans, in this senate. Some are statesmen, but they lack the divine fire to electrify their hearers and the public beyond the doors. Which, maybe, is just as well, everything considered.

Ducks' Rights

MELVIN L. WHEELER of Wichita, Kan. an amateur aviator, is a sadder and wiser man as a result of a recent experience with wild ducks. Flying his plane over a neighboring lake, he spied a flock of ducks and thought it would be good fun to fly right at them and give them a scare.

It was, but Wheeler was reported to the game authorities and fined in federal court for violating the migratory bird act.

It is surprising to find how many rights are possessed by wild birds and animals. Some disgusted hunters think they have more rights than sportsmen have. But the sportsmen gain by such protection in the long run.

Word comes that a Boston zoo has an elephant that croons—if the Republicans happen to be in need of a radio entertainer.

Sabotage Suspected as Bomber Motors Burn Out

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The old rag man, the umbrella man, the organ-grinder with his monk, the push-cart man—especially the pushcart hombre—like Horatio Alger heroes, are being systematically driven from the streets . . . "Picturesque but a nuisance," is the way Commissioner of Markets Morgan sums them up . . . And how are they a nuisance? . . . . "They disrupt traffic. They pay no city tax or sales tax. They buy no licenses. It isn't fair to rent-payers and legitimate merchants to let these fellows wander through the street, peddling everything from spare automobile parts to shoestrings and cabbage . . . They've got to go."

It was Commissioner Morgan who sneered at public sentiment—and rightly so—when the peddlers were driven from Paddy's Market some time ago. Paddy's Market for 50 years was the heaven of pushcarts, on Ninth avenue between 38th and 42nd streets. There was an outcry when the market was finally closed, whereupon Commissioner Morgan, dumbfounded, inquired: "Don't those who weep sentimental tears for Paddy's Market realize that it was the filthiest in the city? The pushcarts violate the Open Air Divisions regulations. They cost the city half a million dollars a year, picking up the trash they throw away."

So 1939 is twilight for Manhattan's street criers . . . One will miss the chestnut vendor, with his black, sooty, charcoal roaster, standing on bleak corners in winter. One will miss him and all his tattered brethren who, like everything else here, must give way to the inexorable law of Change.

IT IS perhaps no coincidence that Charles Atlas runs into himself every time he turns a corner. The man whose physique is said to be as nearly perfect as the human figure can be, has been sought after by sculptors in so many climes that wherever he goes he discovers himself standing in town squares, or in statuary halls, or adorning the face of buildings. He has posed so frequently for sculptors that, as they say, he is a resident in effigy in virtually every state in the Union.

That statue of an early, great American in Washington has Alexander Hamilton's head, but Atlas body. In Jefferson City, Mo., he is a Centaur. In New York he is George Washington in stone. He even graces the battle fields of France, being the dominant figure in the Marne Memorial. Today you see him here and there about the town, seemingly as graceful and lithe at 46 as he ever was. He has a job, a career, that of persuading thousands of others everywhere to accept the benefits of sensible physical culture. Atlas still recalls his embarrassment at being undersized and sickly at 17. Being sickly is dumb, he says, because, 99 times out of a hundred, it isn't necessary.

THE story of the week concerns four Harlem lads and Jimmy Shields, the singer, who came upon them simultaneously with a cop. They were throwing the dice on a street corner . . . "But we weren't shoting craps," one small lad protested . . . "No, no," boomed the cop. Then what were you doing?" . . . For one brief moment the kid seemed panic-stricken, then he grinned. "We wus going to play parchesi—but we forgot the board."

Observations of a Newcomer.

Editor News-Journal:

Mansfield is a lovely town. I'm proud to be living here, and I'll tell you why.

I like breathing its cool, dry, invigorating air. Especially in the early morning it is like drinking a glass of pure wine. It makes me feel happy, hopeful, strong.

In the Mansfield stores you can buy anything you need at reasonable prices. Its industries provide more opportunities for making a living than are found in many larger cities.

I like the people in your town; their percise speech; their lack of show of material possessions; their genuine friendliness.

Your schools are good; so is your General hospital, and you have a fine public library. The only church I've managed to visit, so far, expresses my own idea of what a modern, useful church should be.

There is much beauty in your town. You can see it in every block in the city—in some window, or in a bit of sky unmarred by the thick smoke pall which smothers some cities; or even in the fresh, young face of a pretty girl, or the look of peace on the face of an aged person. You can see it in the grace of a white birch tree, or the perfect shade of the buckeye, or the fern-like branches of that other kind of tree which grows in nearly every vacant spot, and whose name nobody seems to know. You can surely see the beauty in the fish pool in Central park and in the eager childish faces around it.

Already, I have found so many desirable things here, so few undesirable, that I'm glad to be here.

STORMY WEATHER AHEAD

British In Farm Tool Market

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Britain will need a lot of agricultural implements from the United States, according to well-informed British sources here. No precise estimates have been made, they stated, but it will run to around $50,000,000.

The point is that the submarine menace, plus the airplane menace to merchant shipping, is now recognized as the most important factor in the whole war. It boils down to the question of whether the Germans can starve Britain or not—the same question that was so important in 1917.

Britain's agricultural acreage is now estimated at only 9,000,000. At the close of the World war at least 3,000,000 acres were under cultivation for food, which are now idle. Actually, some experts think the acreage could be pushed up to 15,000,000. This seems doubtful to American experts here, not because of any special knowledge they have on the situation but because they are convinced that Britain pretty nearly went the limit in cultivating idle ground capable of food production in the closing years of the World war.

But to put land under cultivation, which has not been used for crops for twenty years, requires more machinery, per acre, than land which has been continuously in production, for obvious reason. And there has been very little replacement because the number of acres cultivated in Britain has been shrinking.

Now for the joker! The British who are talking about all this in Washington are wondering how they can get around the Hiram Johnson act, and finance these purchases of agricultural machinery in the United States. One plan being considered is to organize a corporation to be called the British-American Agricultural Implement company, or something of the sort.

It would presumably be a private company, and intended to make a profit out of buying and selling agricultural machinery—on time. It would buy the machinery from the implement manufacturers, paying cash, and sell the implements in Britain, on credit, the ostensible intention being that when the debts were paid by the British farmers there would be a nice profit on the whole transaction.

Actually, however, the stock would not be offered with much of a profit sales talk. It could be circularized without running afoul of Securities and Exchange Commission regulations, because there would be no glittering promises held out. The intention would not be to attract purchasers who normally go in for gold mine and wildcat oil field stocks, nor for any other variety of the would-be get-rich-quick suckers.

The appeal would be almost exclusively to persons who would, were it not for the Johnson act, be buying British bonds, more to make a contribution to British success, or against Hitler, than to make money. The idea would also be to keep the British government as far away from the whole affair, officially, as possible, though actually the desire for a private blessing from the British government would be very strong.

But the most interesting phase of the whole business is not that American farm machinery makers may get a little business, or that there may be loopholes in the Johnson act, but that certain elements in Britain already realize that the biggest question in the whole war is whether or not Britain can be starved.

Are College Courses Going Out?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

LOTS of things are going out on the Big Wind, nowadays . . . things we once thought indispensable for 16-cylinder lives. College educations, f'rinstance.

Ever since we left England, scrambled up on that Plymouth Rock, we've remembered those ivy-covered towers, those high-browed Dons. Remembered, and wished they were part of our American set-up. Diplomas came too high, at first, for pioneering pops. But even if Grandpa couldn't afford one, Grandson would, someday. And did. Until, at last, everyone was doing it. Spending four years acquiring a degree, whether it fitted the rest of his interior decorations or not.

And then it hit us, that Big Wind. And we began wondering, in a heckuva hurry, just what Really Mattered and what didn't. College educations, for example. Obviously they were necessary in certain careers. But how about the youngsters who had neither special talent nor particular aim—WERE DEGREES WORTH WHAT THEY COST IN THEIR CASES? We wondered. Decided to ask the several million Young Americans who parked on this desk, what they thought about it.

AND FOUND, TO OUR HUGE SURPRISE, THAT OUT OF THOUSANDS OF TYPICAL YOUNGSTERS, OVER ¾ FELT THAT COLLEGE WASN'T WORTH THE PRICE THE OLD FOLKS HAD TO PAY!

Here's young Rosetta V. Bourne, of Lusby, Maryland.

"Everyone agrees that serious students deserve the best possible start. But how many serious students can you find on the average campus? Nine-tenths of them are there to make whoopee—and I think it's disgusting.

It's not fair to expect poor parents to struggle and sacrifice for young people who only see life as a merry-go-round and use their college years as a perpetual joy ride, after which they'll come home and sink into the same rut they'd have ended in if they'd never seen a campus!

Rosetta V. Bourne—Age 17
Lusby, Maryland

And all the time you've been thinking that the "Young Generation's just a bunch of selfish brats who haven't a thought beyond their own pleasure!" Hard to swallow? Here are some even harder, from Donald Hunter, of Columbus, Ohio.

"THE TROUBLE WITH MOST STUDENTS, AND PARENTS AND PROFESSORS AS WELL," says Donald, "IS THAT THEY CONFUSE FACTS WITH KNOWLEDGE.

College can give us facts, yes. And we think that's all there is to it. But it isn't We can find facts everywhere, but knowledge only comes when we apply those facts to daily experience. Facts can be bought. Knowledge must be achieved by our own struggles. And most of us are too busy with campus fun to realize this fact. SO THE AVERAGE COLLEGE CAREER IS A FAILURE, FOR BOTH STUDENTS, PARENTS AND PROFESSORS EXPECT IT TO PERFORM AN IMPOSSIBLE MIRACLE."

Donald Hunter—age 23
1006 McKinley, Ave. Columbus, O.

But Evelyn Davis, of Macon, Georgia, voices the old tradition which had made college education desirable and kept Dad content with its cost—no matter how many Big Winds come or go.

"I look at my own newly started career," says she. "Did my college course pay? FOUR YEARS AT COLLEGE IN ORDER TO HOLD A $74 PER MONTH JOB? The answer's an obvious 'NO!' But then I look at the other side of things . . . the contacts with fine, mature minds . . . the social advantages . . . the knowledge gained of cultural values . . . the lovely, lasting friendships, and I cry 'YES!' YOU CANNOT JUDGE COLLEGE BY ITS CASH RETURNS . . . NOR EVEN BY ITS SOCIAL ADVANCEMENT. BUT IF YOU MEASURE IT BY INDIVIDUAL SPIRITUAL GROWTH, IT IS ONE OF LIFE'S RICHEST INVESTMENTS!"

Evelyn Davis—age 20

Ohio Anecdotes

Hickory Church.

The first Presbyterian church in frontier Columbus was the Hickory church, so-called because of its hickory sapling construction.

A rapidly-growing congregation meeting in the Franklin county courthouse built the church in 1814 on Spring creek. Spring and Front streets approximate the location now.

The pastor, the Rev. James Hoge, in 1821 extended his parish to include the area from the Darby creek west to Walnut creek on the east, and from Dublin on the north to Circleville on the south.

Perhaps 100 churches are established in the same area today.

Laziness travels so slowly that poverty soon overtakes it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One of the closely guarded secrets of the FBI is an investigation it is making of suspected sabotage of bombers being built for the navy at the Glenn L. Martin airplane plant in Baltimore. The case is one of the most sinister tackled by the G-men in a long time.

The navy ordered twenty-one of the airplanes, a new type of long-range, twin-motor, patrol bombers, at a cost of $250,000 apiece. The first was delivered recently at the naval air station near Norfolk, Va., and trouble developed immediately.

On the very first flight one of the twin motors burned out. Replaced with another brand new motor from Baltimore, the same thing happened again—and continued to happen until four new motors in rapid succession had burned out. Also, several crack test pilots narrowly escaped death in bringing the crippled, heavy ship to earth.

Alarmed by the mysterious burn-outs, Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison called in the FBI, simultaneously ordered work suspended on seven other ships until the G-men and navel inspectors got to the bottom of the affair. They promptly padlocked that part of the plant where the ships were being built and placed all the employes under scrutiny.

This investigation quickly brought to light the interesting fact that some of the key men in the plant were Germans. Three of them had a direct connection with the building of the bombers.

Note—Besides the 21 bombers, the Martin firm has an order for 100 other naval planes for completion by 1942, also is building 500 bombers for the French to be delivered by next spring, and a number of military ships for the Dutch government.

"HAPPY" CHANDLER tried awfulyy hard to be dignified when he roared into Washington, accompanied by his wife and a crowd of office-holding followers, to be sworn in as senator. But, beside himself with joy, he was as frisky as a colt and bubbled all over the place.

"This reminds me of the time I visited Hollywood," he exclaimed. "They threw a party for me and I was seated between my wife and Hedy Lamarr. Well, I looked her over and boy, she was something. So I turned to my wife and said, 'Mom, it was nice to have known you.' "

AFL Convention.

A SIGNIFICANT feature of the AFL convention last week was the unpublished fact that in private many of the delegates talked seriously of replacing President William Green.

This behind-the-hand discussion progressed no further than the talk stage. In an atmosphere of harmony and good feeling, Green was re-elected unamimously for another one-year term. But the prevalence of the talk indicated that Green's hold on his position is far from being as secure as it appears on the surface.

Sentiment to retire him is there if any one of his ambitious would-be successors can bring it to a head. However, Bill Green's strength is the same factor that won him the job in the first place.

His stronger and abler rivals distrust each other too much to allow any one of them to become president. But if some of them ever do get together and pool their forces, then Green is finished. For, basically, he is not liked either by the conservatives or by the liberals.

Among leaders of the Old Guard, such as William Hutcheson, aged head of the bricklayers and a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, Green is considered too pro-New Deal. But the younger and more liberal leaders think he is too much under the sway of the Hutcheson element, and not militant enough.

Caught between this crossfire, Green actually has an unhappy time of it. Nevertheless this situation is his salvation, so long as neither group will risk ousting him for fear the other will capture the coveted prize.

The one AFL leader with any real personal popularity among the rank and file is Dan Tobin, boss of the Teamsters' union, which had the biggest growth in the Federation last year, to a total of 350,000 members. Able, progressive and a fighter, Tobin has been a leading advocate of peace with the CIO—a fact that has not helped his standing with the Old Guard.

It was significant that at last week's convention, Tobin avoided peace talk and fraternized with the conservative leaders who are known to be after Green's scalp.

Merry-Go-Round.

THE staff of the government's forthcoming Antarctic expedition will enjoy better movie facilities than the members fo the Byrd camp. Their recreation hall was so cold they had to stamp their feet to keep warm during a show. This time the hall will be equipped with a double floor, heavily insulated. . . .Representative J. Buell Snyder became suspicious of his heavy pro-embargo mail, and conducted a quiet poll in his Pennsylvania district. Result showed definite preponderence of sentiment for repealing the embargo. Snyder attributes the flood of opposition mail to organized pressure. . . . As a result of the personal intercession of Federal Works Administrator John Carmody, WPA moguls have restored the workers' education program that had been so brilliantly conducted by Miss Hilda Smith. In the recent WPA shakeup her project was junked, but both AFL and CIO officials protested to Carmody and he ordered it resumed. . . . Cornmeal Mush

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT'S TIME for cornmeal mush. I watched my wife get out the iron pot and put it on, half full of water. When the water boiled, she added salt and slowly sifted in the golden meal from a bag on the table. The meal was finely ground, and spread upon the surface, so that she must stir it in with a wooden spoon. The steamy vapor spurted from the pot and presently the contents began to sputter contentedly, and the odor of boiling cornmeal permeated the big country kitchen.

All the time she was washing the supper dishes, the pot kept simmering over a slow fire. Occasionally she stopped to stir its contents, and from behind my evening paper I watched her shadow upon the wall — as mother stirred the mush in the light of the yellow, coal oil lamp. I thought how often this same scene has been repeated in history of our land, and how many pioneer families have been nourished upon this simple, rustic food.

My memory went back to boyhood days about my father's table when six of us children grouped about our suppertime bowls of mush and milk. The recollection of that simple, wholesome-tasting food will always bring a homesick twinge to me.

When the mush was cooked, and a scum had formed about the sides of the pot, she lifted the heavy kettle and poured out its thick odorous contents into a deep baking pan. I knew that, for our breakfast, we should have strips of crisp brown goodness, fried, and served with syrup or honey, and my mouth watered. This homely fare suits me better than daintier eating would.

Give a man such a meal as farmers have, with crisp bacon, fried mush and steaming coffee and who would not do his work without losing his energy? Such a meal adds full joy to a crisp October morning, and subtracts much of the drudgery from the heaviest toil.

USE OWN COTTON

Georgia Growers Wrap Up Product With Surplus.

ATLANTA, Ga.—(U.P.)—A drive to persuade growers and ginners to use cotton bagging to wrap bales of cotton in order to absorb a part of the 11,500,000-bale surplus is beginning to show signs of success.

Reports from all sections of the cotton belt are that ginners are stocking cotton bagging as well as jute, which has been used to wrap cotton since the days of Eli Whitney, and many farmers are pledging cooperation.

To many growers, it makes little difference whether their cotton is wrapped in jute or cotton bagging. Thus the choice often is left to the man who gins it. In every community, ginners are promising to use the newer wrapper when the decision is left to them.

MARGARET COPLAND BRIDE OF O. W. EPPS

Rev. Hayes M. Braker Performs Ceremony Yesterday Afternoon; Couple Will Make Home At South Main Street Address.

A FORMAL wedding ceremony was performed at 3:30 p. m. yesterday when Rev. Hayes M. Braker read the service at the Park Avenue Baptist church for Miss Margaret Rose Copland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford M. Copland, 422 Louise avenue, and Orvid William Epps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Epps, West Fourth street road.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown made along princess lines with a deep lace yoke, tiny button closing, leg-o-mutton sleeves with lace inserts and a Queen Anne style collar. Her two-tiered fingertip length veil was attached to a Juliet style cap with a pearl halo. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and gardenias and a handkerchief which had belonged to her grandmother.

Miss Anna Mae Mowry was maid of honor, and she wore a turquoise taffeta gown made along basque lines with a Mary Queen of Scots crownless velvet bonnet trimmed with streamers and ostrich tips to match her gown. The Misses Helen and Marie Tolles, cousins of the bride from Toledo, served as bridesmaids: Their dresses were made similar to Miss Mowry's, with Miss Helen wearing Spanish magenta, and Miss Marie clad in enamel pink.

The maid of honor carried a colonial style bouquet of white baby chrysanthemums, and the Misses Tolles carried colonial bouquets of blue delphiniums and white and yellow baby chrysanthemums. Both wore hats to match their dresses made similarly to Miss Mowry's, and all three girls wore small gold lockets, the gifts of the bride.

Charles Epps, brother of the bride-groom, was best man, and the ushers were Carlton Richie, Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Epp's brother-in-law, James Landis, Lansing, Mich.

Lawrence Frank played appropriate nuptial music, and Donald Kirkpatrick sung "Because" and "All For You." The church altar, before which the solemn ceremony was performed, was banked with palms, ferns, two seven-branch candelabra and a large basket of gladioli.

At the home of the bride's parents a reception was held preceding the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Epps on a short motor trip. They will be at home the end of the week at 113 South Main street. For traveling the bride was attired in a moss green tailored wool costume with brown accessories, and a corsage of gardenias.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Copland wore a grape colored dress with matching accessories and a Talisman rose corsage. Mrs. Epps was attired in black with matching accessories and wore a gardenia corsage.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Epps are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school, and she has been cashier at the Evergreens, while he is employed at the S. S. Kresge company.

Beer-Johnston Nuptials Told

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R Johnston, 132 Parkwood boulevard, today announced the marriage of their daughter, Gladys, to Dale Beer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Beer, jr., 52 Richland avenue. MRS. DALE BEER

Miss Dorothy Selby, Jack Davis Married Saturday

THE altar of the First Christian church was decorated with two beauty baskets of chrysanthemums, pompons and gladioli, palms, ferns and four candelabra for the wedding of Miss Dorothy Ellen Selby and Jack Davis Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger officiated at the single ring service.

Nuptial music was played on the organ by Mrs. H. H. Clingan, whose selections included "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice" and "Indian Love Call." During the ceremony she played "All Through The Night." Richard and Jack Selby 12-year-old twin nephews of the bride, sang "To You" and "I Love You Truly" before the couple exchanged vows.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Weldon Selby, North Smith avenue, was given in marriage by her father. Her bridal gown was of pure white satin fashioned along princess lines with a bustle at the back, full puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. A coronet of pearlized orange glossoms held the bride's fingertip veil in place. The only jewelry she wore was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Her arm bouquet was of white carnations and lillies-of-the-valley.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Marjorie Oswalt, who wore a rose tinted taffeta dress with short puff sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. The full skirt of the gown was trimmed with dubonnet velvet ribbons, and her tiny taffeta hat matched the dress. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses and coxcomb.

John Esselburn served as Mr. Davis' best man, and the ushers were his brother, Aaron Davis, jr., the bride's brother, Robert Selby, Joseph Schuff and Albert Kipp. Mr. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Davis, Ashland road.

Mrs. Selby appeared at her daughter's wedding wearing a gown of King's blue transparent velvet with black accesories and a gardenia shoulder corsage. Mrs. Davis was attired in a black dress trimmed with red. She wore black accesories and a shoulder corsage of red rosebuds.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held for 50 friends and relatives of the couple at the home of the bride's parents. The tea table was centered with a white floral arrangement and decorated with a three-tier wedding cake and four white tapers.

Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Davis left for a week's motor trip through the East, and upon their return they will reside at 212 Penn avenue. For traveling Mrs. Davis wore a red wool dress with a gray caracul bolero jacket, black accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Davis are graduates of Madison Township high school, and Mr. Davis attended Ohio Northern university. Mrs. Davis is employed in the Classified department of The Mansfield News-Journal, and Mr. Davis is affiliated with the Engineering department of the State Highway departments.

Guests who attended the wedding included: Mr. and Mrs. Forest Brown, Canton; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nichols and Gene Brown, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lentz, Ashland; Mrs. Joseph Swihart, Mrs. James Bushman, Mrs. William Davis and Mrs. E. H. Echroad, all of Massillon.

Mansfield Pair Marry Here In Afternoon

Miss Mary Lou Elsass, Mr. Ford Exchange Vows Sunday.

WEARING a blue grass wool dress with a matching jacket and matching antelope hat with black accessories and a gray hip-length kidskin coat, Miss Mary Lou Elsass walked up the aisle of the Park Avenue Baptist church at 2:30 p. m. yesterday with her father to exchange the nuptial vows with James Clopton Ford, son of Mrs. Sarah B. Ford, 218 South Diamond street.

The former Miss Elsass, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin C. Elsass, West Fourth street road, had a corsage of pale pink roses, lilies-of-the-valley and forget-me-nots. She was attended by Miss Geraldine Sommer of North Canton who wore a moss green wool dress with brown accessories and a fox fur jacket. Her flowers were Sunburst roses.

Rev. Hayes M. Braker, church pastor, read the ceremony before the palm and Autumn flower banked altar. David Ford, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Lawrence Frank, church organist, played "Love's Greeting," "Humoresque," "Indian Love Call," "March Nuptiale" and the wedding marches.

Mrs. Elsass was attired in a plum colored dress and hat with an orchid corsage, and Mrs. Ford wore a black and white costume with gardenias for the ceremony. Immediately after the service a reception was held at the Susie Janis home, and then Mr. and Mrs. Ford left on a week's Eastern trip. They will be at home the latter part of the month at 127½ Sturges avenue.

The former Miss Elsass is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, and has been employed at the Ohio Fuel Gas company. She is a member of Zeta Rho chapter of Delta Theta Tau. Mr. Ford was also graduated from Mansfield Senior high school, and is an employe of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

REV. HAGELBARGER PERFORMS MARRIAGE

Miss Doris Arlene Frye, Merle C. Mabee, United Early In Morning At First Christian Church, Cousin Attends Bride.

MISS Doris Arlene Frye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Frye, Lexington, and Merle C. Mabee, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Mabee, West Fourth street road, were married at 8:30 a. m. yesterday by Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger before the palm decorated altar of the First Christian church. Flower filled beauty baskets, and two seven-branch candelabra completed the setting.

The bride, who has made her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Cook at 769 West Fourth street, was attired in a deep ivory taffeta gown with a short train and bustle bow. Her veil was virgin style falling from a halo headpiece to fingertip length. She carried a semi-colonial bouquet of Sweetheart roses, and wore a gold locket, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was attended by her cousin, Miss Ruby L. Cook, who wore a basque type dress made of sapphire blue moire taffeta. Her flowers were also Sweetheart roses.

Elden E. Mabee, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and C. P. McFarland, Defiance, uncle of the bride, and Myrl D. Frye, Akron, brother of the bride, were the ushers. Miss Alfretta Bowden, church organist, played appropriate nuptial music.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to 25 members of the immediate families at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cook.

The bridal pair left on a southern wedding trip early yesterday, and they will be at home Oct. 22 at 33 Douglas avenue. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mabee are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. She has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and he is employed in the office of the Ideal Electric company.

Couple Wedded Saturday, On Trip Through South

CHESTERVILLE — Miss Eloise Feigley, Johnsville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Feigley, and Loyal C. Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orris Jordan, Mt. Gilead, were married here Saturday by Rev. F. E. Crooks.

Following the ceremony, the couple left on a short trip to southern Ohio and West Virginia and on their return will make their home for the time being with the bride's parents.

Mr. Jordan, a graduate of Buffalo, W. Va., high school, is a farmer. His bride is a graduate of Johnsville high school.

TOUR JOURNAL PLANT.

Following a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Towne House Saturday, members of the Little Flower and the Notre Dame Study clubs toured The Mansfield News-Journal plant where they saw the route of production and distribution of a newspaper. Mrs. Joseph Kuebler was hostess.

Couple Wedded at Newport, Ky.

At an informal dinner served yesterday noon individual cakes bearing miniature brides and grooms revealed the marriage of Miss Helen Boock, daughter of Mrs. Katheryn Boock, 46 Lexington avenue, to Henry Distl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Distl, 40 Vennum avenue. The couple was married Sept. 30 in Newport, Ky. They were attended by Miss Helen Englehart, Galion, and Harry Woldridge, New York City.

Following the dinner yesterday, which was served at the bride's mother's home, the couple left for a Southern wedding trip. Upon their return to Mansfield they will be at home at the Lexington avenue address.

Both the bride and bridegroom attended Mansfield Senior high school, and he is employed at the Weidner Motor Sales company.

Hedges, Senior High Groups Plan Meetings

This week there are but two Parent-Teacher meetings scheduled in the city. Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock members of the Hedges school association will hear a talk entitled "Radio and the Home" by Major D. R. Brown of the Salvation Army. The Carpenter Mothersingers, directed by Elsie Ireland, will sing, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dillon will also appear on the program for which Carl M. Stahl is chairman.

Friday night a get-together covered-dish dinner and get-acquainted party will be held in the Senior high school cafeteria for parents. Teachers will be the guests, and a social hour will follow.

WOMEN IN YOUR "40's"

NEED NOT LOSE PHYSICAL CHARM!

Do you dread those "trying years" (usually from 38 to 52)? Are you moody, cranky, nervous lately? Do you fear you're losing your pep and power to attract? Well, listen—

Life may be even MORE glamorous for you now than ever before. Many women find all they need is a reliable "woman's" tonic. If you do—just try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Recent medical tests have proven Pinkham's Compound a most effective "woman's" tonic. Let it aid better digestion and assimilation of your food to tone up your system and thus help calm jangled nerves, lessen female functional distress and give NEW PEP and ENERGY

Informally Speaking...

Monday, Oct. 16.

Lucy, dear:

Marianne

The past week-end was ideal for football, and I was lucky enough to see the Ohio State-Northwestern game—but unlucky enough to be rooting for the losing team. . . . Anyway I saw so many familiar faces that I thought I might even meet you—Lots of folks from town were there—Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hoeffler, Marguerite Speas, John Vogt, Mary Garver and Mary Elizabeth Miller. . . . Oh yes, I saw Marjorie Bolus (she's teaching school in Sandusky now) . . . and Hester Robinson drove by with a party of Mansfielders in her car. . . . Robert Rohrer (another former resident, who lives in Cleveland now) was at the game with Bette Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Frampton. . . . Those were all the folks from Mansfield I saw at the game, but no doubt there were many more I missed.

This seems to be the week for former Mansfielders to visit in town. . . . Mrs. Howard Kehout is a guest of Peg Black now—you probably remember, Lucy, that Mrs. Kehout lived here until about 15 months ago, when she and her husband moved to Bermuda—Peg visited them during her Christmas vacation last year. . . . This is an exciting day for Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Johnston because their son, Frederick, and his wife are arriving from Worthington, Del.—They're bringing along their young son, Junior, who was born July 17.

* * * * *

VACATIONS seem still to be going on. . . . Mrs. A. C. Ferrell left Saturday for California—where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Harley Washburn, and her son, Arthur Ferrell, at San Berdino . . . and a brother, John Ropp, in Los Angeles. . . . She plans to take in the Golden Gate expo at San Francisco too.

* * * * *

Speaking of vacationers, Mr. and Mrs. Derl Arehart returned home yesterday from an exciting ten days in New York City. . . . While there, they saw the World's fair and visited some magazine offices. . . . They went to some stage shows and witnessed broadcasting in the radio studios. . . . Mrs. Arehart also spent some time with her cousin, Larry Hostetler, who is an instructor of ballet and tap dancing at Columbia university.

FRIDAY was an important day for two Mansfield girls, Laurel Jean Lotz and Ursula Brosius. They went down to Delaware where they went to a dinner dance given by the pledges of Sigma Chi fraternity. . . . The pledges who squired them were Thomas Scott and Jack Lyons—both Mansfielders who are freshmen at Ohio Wesleyan.

* * * * *

Another Mansfield college student has done himself proud. . . . Raymond Hainer has just been pledged to Phi Beta Kappa (national honorary scholastic fraternity) at Wooster college. . . . Raymond, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hainer, is a senior there this year.

* * * * *

A GROUP of Mansfielders is conventioning in Columbus now—Drs. Louise Baer, Anna L. Engswiller, Christine Fernyak, Robert and Marie CaJacob are there attending the annual convention of the Ohio State Optometric association at the Deschler-Wallack hotel—and plan to return tomorrow evening.

ALL of which seems to wind up the news for today, Lucy. I'll drop you a line again next Monday.

Lovingly,

Marianne
